WEST CENTRALVILLE

Is Going to Have Good Electric Car Service

The spur electric car line from Lakeview avenue through Aiken avenue, Lilley avenue and Hildreth street to Hovey square in Dracut, will be in operation just as soon as the tracks can be laid and the poles erected and trolley wires strung, according to information given out this noon by Supt. Thomas Lees of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co.

The action of the Boston & Northern is a victory for the residents of West Centralville who have been agitating the extension of the electric line in that section of the city.

West Centralville has been built up so rapidly during the past few years that the residents of that section felt that they should be given better rail-way service, for people living in the vicinity of Hildreth street have found that it was out of the way to connect with either the Dracut Centre or Lakeview avenue lines.

The West Centralville Improvement Association of which ex-Alderman John H. Beaulieu is president, has been the prime mover in the agitation and at a hearing recently held before the city council speakers for the association intimated that the Boston & Northern had broken its promise relative to the extension of the rail. The West Centralville has become one of the most populous sections of the city goes without saying when the city council deemed it advisable to erect a new fire house in that locality.

Supl. Lees, in conversation with a representative of The Sun this noon, stated that the cars would run from the rails at Lakeview avenue, through Aiken avenue, to Lilley avenue, through Hildreth street and to a point about 400 feet beyond the city line, which is known as Hovey square, at the junction of Hildreth and Pleasant streets in Dracut.

He said that work on the laying of rails and erection of poles and stringing of wires would be started at once and that as soon as the rails and wires were in place cars would be run over the line.

At the present time he is unable to say what time will be run over the proposed route. The residents of West Centralville are highly elated over their victory, and as one resident stated to the writer, "The money received on the new line will show the Boston & Northern our appreciation of its efforts to give us good service."

FUNERALS

McSALLY—The funeral of Alice M. McSally took place yesterday afternoon from the home of her parents, 34 First street. The interment was in the Catholic cemetery under the direction of Funeral Directors Charles H. Molloy & Sons.

GAGNON—The funeral of Mrs. Joseph Gagnon took place yesterday morning from her home, 55 Ward street, with solemn funeral services at St. Joseph's church. Rev. Frs. Vautelle, Bernache and Racette, O. M. I., officiated. The choir sang Perrault's harmonized mass, with Frank Gourdeau directing, and Joseph A. Bernard presiding. The service was held at 10 o'clock. The bearers were Ernest, Alphonse and Theophile Gagnon, Joseph and David Plette and Lazare Ouellette. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery and Rev. Fr. Racette officiated at the grave. Undertaker Joseph Albert had charge.

CANNON—The funeral of the late Mrs. Catherine Cannon took place Tuesday afternoon from her late home, No. 13 Jewett street, and was largely attended. Burial was in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery, where Rev. Fr. Racette officiated. The church read the committal services at the grave. Funeral Director James W. McKenna had charge.

MILLS—The body of the late William Arthur Mills of Lowell, was taken to Westford yesterday noon and buried at Fairview cemetery. Deceased is survived by a wife and three children, a mother, Mrs. Hugh Mills, a sister, Mrs. E. A. Carter, and a brother, Herbert Mills of Westford; also a sister, Mrs. Cowdry of Billerica. Broken Into But Nothing of Value Was Taken

The basement of the public library was broken into last Monday night and it is thought that another attempt was made last night or early this morning. The burglar, supposedly a boy, did not succeed in getting away with anything of great value.

Entrance to the basement was made by way of a window between the library and the city hall. A key was applied to the window, which was forced so as to break the catch. The burglar who probably thought that he would be able to make his way to the library rooms up stairs, but in this he was mistaken. The connecting door was closed and bolted. The burglar then got busy and pried open a roll-top desk in the reading room. His work did not net him anything and all that is missed by the library people is a whisk broom and a copy of the New York Clipper.

The broken catch was replaced by another, and examination of the new catch this morning disclosed the fact that it had been tampered with. But why a burglar should attempt to rob a public library is a question that is left to him to answer. The matter has been reported to the police.

MANY PHYSICIANS

Summoned in Case at Superior Court Today

Mrs. Sadie Howard, Who Was in a Car Collision While En Route to "Baby Show" Last August, Sues the Boston & Northern for $20,000

The most formidable array of medical talent that has appeared in any case at this session of the superior court was present this morning in connection with the case of Mrs. Sadie Howard and Milton Howard vs. Boston & Northern street railway, to recover for personal injuries in the case of Mrs. Howard and loss of services, etc., in the husband's case.

The medical men present were Drs. Temple and Dugdale who are attending the plaintiff at the present time, and Drs. Meigs, Bell, Mahony, W. A. Johnson and Tabor. Christian Science was also mentioned in the case but had no representative in court.

It is alleged that in August, 1909, Mrs. Howard was on a car bound for and from the city. The car in which she rode collided with another car.

Her counsel admits that she was in delicate health at the time of the accident and that her present condition is not entirely due to the accident but that her illness has been greatly aggravated by the accident which would not have been a serious one to a person in good health. Mrs. Howard sued for $20,000 and her husband for $5000.

Many will recall the accident as having occurred on the day of the "Baby Show" at Lakeview. The case of Mrs. Howard vs. Boston & Northern appears for the plaintiff and Messrs. Trull & Wier for the defendant. Mr. Howard is a traveling salesman for the John Pilling shoe company and the couple live on Wilder street.

Mrs. Howard appeared to be decidedly ill and walked with great difficulty. This morning at the request of counsel for the defense she was escorted by Drs. Temple and Dugdale to a retiring room, where she was examined by Drs. Meigs and Bell as to her present physical condition. Court took a recess to accommodate the physicians.

Mrs. Howard related the circumstances of the accident, a rear-end collision in Lakeview avenue. Her sister-in-law, Miss Nellie Howard, who accompanied her, testified as to the accident.

Mrs. Howard testified also that her health was poor before the accident and that she had tried several physicians and was improving under Dr. Temple's care when the accident occurred.

Milton Howard, the husband, testified that his wife had been in poor health prior to the accident and that he had tried several physicians and even tried Christian Science. "We gave them all a chance," he said.

Mrs. Davis, a friend of Mrs. Howard for 22 years and who worked with her in Lowell, in Boston before Mrs. Howard's marriage, testified as to the great change in Mrs. Howard's physical condition since the accident.

Mrs. Laura A. Reynolds testified that she has been employed as an attendant upon Mrs. Howard for four months. Mrs. Howard, she said, suffered intense and constant pain, particularly at night, and she never rests at night, resting in the morning or during the day. Mrs. Reynolds stated that Mrs. Howard's condition is falling rather than improving. Up to five months ago, she said, she had never seen Mrs. Howard and hence knew nothing of her health or physical condition prior to that time.

Dr. Franklin S. Temple was the first of the medical witnesses. He testified that he was a graduate of the Albany Medical college of Albany, N. Y. He testified that he first met Mrs. Howard in June, 1908, when she came to his office. He attended her at his office six times and then visited her at her home. He attended her during June, and Dr. Dugdale attended her while he was on his vacation. Witness said that he gave the patient vibratory treatment, a mechanical electric massage. It takes the place of the hand massage. It is claimed that it goes deeper than the hand massage.

While testifying Dr. Temple took a weak spell, but declined a chair. He recently underwent an operation, and stated that he was under the influence of a little cocaine. Mrs. Howard, he said, suffered from weakness and vomiting spells. Apparently she improved under his care. He found a medicine that temporarily controlled the vomiting. He then put her under a plain sulphur treatment and she improved sufficiently to get up and move around.

About Christmas he made a diagnosis of her case and found her suffering with locomotor ataxia, possibly of tubercular origin. Witness then, at Mr. O'Connor's request, explained what the disease is.

For New Trial

J. Joseph O'Connor, of this city, counsel for the plaintiff in the cases of Kelly vs. Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, today filed motions for a new trial of the cases, which were taken from the jury by Judge Hardy yesterday.

MILK PRODUCERS

Are Turning Milk Into Butter

BOSTON, May 4.—Turning to butter a large part of the milk that is being held back from the contractors who refuse to pay winter prices for it, is now the occupation of the farmers who are engaged in the milk war in Massachusetts. Sixteen hundred pounds of butter were churned yesterday in the new milk separator in Farnace, Worcester county, one of the milk producing centers.

Both consumers felt no effect of the milk situation today, but the producers said that in a few more days the contractors would be unable to obtain a supply equal to the demand and profit on it. The contractors were just as confident that they will have plenty of milk and said today there was no possible chance of a milk famine.

WISTERIAS IN BLOOM

Dr. C. T. Clifford of 89 Westford street, reports he has wisterias in bloom for several weeks. This is rather unusual owing to the fact that the present season has been backward. As a rule this beautiful flower is about in bloom on Memorial day, when thousands are used for the decoration of graves.

CONGRESS OF PHYSICIANS

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The congress of American Physicians and Surgeons in their eighth triennial session here began today a discussion of all medical, surgical and therapeutic questions on the program of the convention. The conference was divided into various branches. More than a thousand delegates are in attendance.

BOY DROWNED TWO AUTOISTS FINED

Little George Regis Fell Down Bank

George Regis, aged nine years, son of George Regis of 622 Market street, was drowned in the Pawtucket canal about 5 o'clock last evening, at a point just north of the Moody street bridge.

LITTLE BOY FALLS INTO THE CANAL AND IS DROWNED

The little fellow was gathering dandelion blossoms with a young companion when he lost his balance and fell over the steep bank of the canal. The other boy spoke but little English and could not give a clear account of what had happened.

Stephen Rochette, who conducts a garage nearby, and others hearing the boy's screams ran to the canal bank but could not see the body. Mr. Rochette secured a long rope but all he could see were tufts of grass floating on the water, which the boy had clutched in an endeavor to save himself as he rolled down the bank.

The boy's father and his uncle, Special Officer John Regis, were notified and were on the scene during the evening but no trace of the body was found. The current at this point is particularly swift and the body was taken under at once.

DEATHS

STRATTON—Mr. Torrey E. Stratton of 10 Canal street died yesterday afternoon after a short illness, aged 73 years. Deceased was one of Lowell's oldest residents, having lived here for more than 60 years. He leaves a wife and one daughter, Mrs. J. A. Wilcox of Newtonville. He was a member of William North lodge, A. F. and A. M.

SMITH—James F. Smith, aged 41 years, familiarly known as "Bob" Smith, died today at his home, 212 Broadway. He was a well known member of St. Patrick's parish. He leaves a mother, Ellen Smith; a wife, Mary A.; one brother, Thomas E., and a sister, Mary I.

FOR THE PRESERVATION OF YOUTH AND BEAUTY

Care of the teeth is a most important factor for Nature is not always dependable, and irregular or impaired teeth can mar the most perfect face. A skillful dentist can always redeem and restore such teeth to their proper form and beauty. The methods used by Dr. Gagnon are such as are prescribed by the very latest modern dental practice. If you desire dental treatment you can safely entrust yourself to his experience, skill and scientific attainments.

Officers Caught Them in a 100 Foot Trap

And Testified That They Were Going Fifteen Miles an Hour—Somerville Case Appealed—Other Cases Disposed of

Alfred E. Hovey, chauffeur for Willis Farrington of this city, and John D. Blunt, colored, chauffeur for Henry L. Crane of Somerville, were each fined $15 in police court this morning after being found guilty of overspeeding their machines while passing through the "100 foot trap" in Moody street, near the corner of Aiken street, on the afternoon of Sunday, April 24th. Mr. Hovey paid his fine, but Mr. Blunt, through his counsel, entered an appeal.

Francis Hurlbut, Jr., who was secretary to former Governor John C. Bates, when the latter was the chief executive of the state, and one of the men who was instrumental in the framing of the automobile laws which were enacted by the legislature of 1909, appeared for Mr. Blunt, and though he made a strong argument for acquittal the court found him guilty.

It is said that Lawyer Hurlbut is better versed in the automobile laws of this state than any other man in the commonwealth and that he has tried thousands of cases similar to the one of today.

Pleads Not Guilty

Mr. John D. Blunt was called and Lawyer Hurlbut was waiving the reading of the complaint entered a plea of not guilty. The first witness called was Inspector Philip Dwyer, who after describing the location of the trap said that he was stationed at a point in Moody street between Aiken and Austin streets and at a signal from Inspector Frank Fox, who held the watch and timed the different machines, stopped the car driven by Mr. Blunt. He testified that the chauffeur did not stop the car until after he had passed him.

The other boy spoke but little English and could not give a clear account of what had happened. The first witness for the defense was Blunt, the defendant, who testified that he is in the employ of Henry L. Crane of Somerville. On the date in question he was returning from the Vesper-Country club. He said that when he reached the decline leading from the Moody street bridge he shut off his power and was coasting along the street until he reached a point where he threw into the first clutch. When he reached a street which he thought must have been Aiken street he saw a man rush into the street and hold up his right hand. He said he did not know the man was a police officer.

The man, he said, was dressed in civilian's clothes and not until he had stopped his car and the man had showed his badge did he know that the man was an officer. He said that he would not have stopped but for the fact that his employer told him to stop. Mr. Blunt testified that his machine was equipped with a "nightingale" whistle which is connected with the exhaust and which will keep sounding as long as the connecting string is held. He said that owing to the number of people who were in the street at the time he kept the whistle in operation and was running between seven and eight miles an hour. He said the peculiar sound of his whistle attracted children in the street and he ran the car very slowly and noticing his speedometer said that it registered between seven and eight miles an hour.

Occupants of Car Testify

Arthur Corwin of Somerville, who occupied a seat in the tonneau of the car, said that while he did not notice the speedometer, he knew that the car was moving along at a very slow rate of speed.

Dorothy Crane, daughter of the owner of the car, testified that she had been running the same car for about a year and though she could not see the speedometer from the seat which she occupied in the tonneau, she could tell from her experience in running cars that the car was running at less than ten miles an hour and that it could be stopped within the length of the car if such was necessary.

Calla Wilson, also an occupant of the car, testified the car was running at a very low rate of speed.

In closing his argument Lawyer Hurlbut stated that he wanted to establish at this time what the law intended when it was framed relative to due regard for the rights of people operating machines, but Judge Hadley interrupted the lawyer and said that he (Judge Hadley) was trying the case and Mr. Hurlbut then shifted over to another phase of the question, stating that he would try the case on the facts as to whether the defendant was guilty or not. He stated that he was instrumental in the framing of the automobile laws and was well versed in them and that the intent of the law was that the driver should operate his car in a reasonable, sensible and sane way.

In conclusion, he said that the government did not show that the defendant was driving in the unreasonable manner and asked for his discharge.

The court, however, took a different view of the case and found the defendant guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $15. An appeal was taken and Mr. Blunt was held under $500 for his appearance before the superior court.

Another Chauffeur Fined

Alfred E. Hovey, chauffeur for Willis Farrington of this city, was also fined $15 for overspeeding. He was caught in the Moody street trap on Sunday, April 24, and was ordered to appear in court last week, but owing to the fact that shortly after he had been summoned into court he took unto himself a wife the court allowed that there was sufficient reason for his case being continued.

Inspectors Fox and Dwyer, who operated the trap, testified to the effect that the defendant was traveling at the rate of between 15 and 18 miles an hour.

The defendant said that he was running his machine very slowly, he had the clutch out and the brake was on, and thought he was going at the rate of about five miles an hour. He said that he was following a wagon through the street and could not have been going very fast.

He was found guilty and a fine of $15 imposed.

Drunken Offenders

James M. Harding and his wife Catherine, appeared before the court on charges of drunkenness. Each entered a plea of guilty and the woman was sentenced to two months in the house of correction at Cambridge, while her husband was sentenced to five months at the same institution, the latter having been under a suspended sentence of five months in jail.

Emma Parent, while under the influence of liquor last night, entered a shoe shining shop in Middlesex street and raised a disturbance. She was allowed to escape with a fine of $5.

Stephen Parrie was given a suspended sentence of four months in jail for ten days and one first offender was fined $2.

Case Continued

The case of Patrick H. Sullivan, of Tewksbury, charged with failing to provide for the support of his minor child, had his case continued till May 18th, at the request of Lawyer Nathan D. Pratt who informed the court that he thought that an agreement between the parties would be reached in the meantime.

TEACHERS' BANQUET

New Organization Gathers Around the Festive Board

Address Given by Dr. David Snedden, State Commissioner of Education—Supt. Whitcomb, Dr. Lamoreux and Sec. Warren P. Riordan—200 Teachers Attended Banquet

The recently organized Teachers' association of this city held its first banquet in Prescott hall last night with a party of 200 around the tables, members of the school board, and the speakers of the occasion being the special guests.

The Teachers' organization was formed for purposes of co-operation along social and educational lines and its first event proved to be a complete success.

Miss Belle F. Bachelder, president of the organization, presided over the banquet. Rev. E. P. Whitcomb invoked the divine blessing. There were vocal solos by James E. Donnelly, Miss Josephine Coburn, accompanist, and selections by Hibbard's orchestra.

Supt. Whitcomb introduced as the first speaker Supt. A. K. Whitcomb, his subject being "The Importance of Social Intercourse." He first congratulated the teachers on the success of the entertainment, and then spoke in part as follows:

"Socrates, you may remember, once held a long discussion with his disciples on the question as to the comparative value of wealth, honor, fame, one side, and of friends on the other. He argued, and his disciples finally agreed unanimously, that money and popular favor give little solid enjoyment while they are retained, and that they are easily and often lost. Friends, on the other hand, are a constant joy in retrospect and in prospect as well as in the present, and if they be real and true friends they can never be lost, not even by a change of worlds. Every new friend broadens and enriches life. Money may become a burden and honors a weariness to the spirit. A new friend, on the other hand, never crowds out the old, and of true friends no one ever had too many."

"Now no teacher in the city of Lowell, so far as I can judge, has more than a very limited acquaintance with her sisters in her own profession. I, however, who know you all, wish to assure you, individually, that there are many among those whom you do not know who are exceedingly well worth knowing. My word for it, there are large numbers of you, now wholly unknown to each other, whose lives would be immeasurably enriched, who would be made happier, as well as more useful, by acquaintance and friendship.

"And this is why I especially rejoice in this meeting. I commend the public and professional spirit with which you planned it. I am delighted that it should succeed so well, and I hope it will be the beginning of many gatherings of this and of other kinds which will promote the social intercourse on which so much of your happiness and your usefulness depends."

Dr. Lamoreux, chairman of the school board, spoke on "The Importance of Intellectual Growth." Mayor Mehan was unable to attend and in his place he sent his secretary, Warren P. Riordan, who addressed the company.

Dr. Snedden's Address

The address of the evening on "The Importance of Organization," was delivered by Dr. David Snedden, commissioner of education for Massachusetts. Dr. Snedden spoke in part as follows:

Dr. Snedden's Address

The final speaker was Dr. David Snedden, state commissioner of education for Massachusetts, and his subject was "The Importance of Organization." He said in part:

"I once heard the witty Bishop Montgomery, at a teachers' meeting in Los Angeles remark that it reminded him of the kingdom of heaven, because the women were in such vast majority. What is true of this gathering tonight is as we know coming to be more or less true of the profession which we represent. The men are steadily in some cases rapidly disappearing from the American teaching profession. It is coming to be a woman's profession; perhaps apart from home-making, the most occupied and the greatest profession into which women are going."

"This is true not only in this country, but in England, and in France, also, the number of men is diminishing; and in Germany, several thousands of women have been introduced into places that hitherto have been supposed to be pre-empted by men."

"All sorts of reasons are assigned from time to time, as to why this great, fundamental change is taking place. At the bottom, the relative disappearance of men and the monopolization of the profession by women is largely concurrent with the rising standards in the teaching profession. I say this without any attempt to be derogative of the men who have followed the teaching profession as a career. The simple fact is that the American public has been engaged for a good many years in elevating the requirements made on teachers. The teaching profession could be filled with men at $50 a month, if the standards were lowered enough to permit the employment of men of that stamp. Sixty years ago, men who were crippled or otherwise handicapped were given teaching positions very much as when they could do anything else."

"Of course every one who studies the educational situation, knows that things are improving. Salaries are going up—taking the country at large, and the character of those entering the work, in respect to professional training is steadily improving. The consequence is that the type of person demanded cannot be procured among men, for the compensation offered. Therefore, teaching being woman's best profession, and only man's 20th, perhaps, the profession has come to be more and more a woman's profession. I am at heart a champion of that situation of affairs, nor to eulogize it. So far, we must confess ignorance, on the whole, as to what will be the consequence of the great change. Our guesses will take color from our prejudices. But it does seem to be the case that ultimately, education is to be wholly woman's work. And in this connection I would suggest the very great importance of organization."

"Speaking generally, outside the kindergarten work, women have not figured conspicuously as leaders in the associated movements of this country. With but few exceptions, the great organizations are offered and directed by men. Men have the habit of leadership, and women still retain a certain modesty about coming forward. So our tradition has not always favored their taking the initiative, and the consequence is that in the great bulk of organizations, women follow and do not lead, notwithstanding the fact that of the 450,000 teachers of the country, they constitute upwards of 80 per cent.

"It is a trite statement, but has to be reiterated again and again, that public education is evolving; that the demands made upon educators—men and women—today, are steadily increasing. More and more, the work must rest upon scientifically demonstrated principles. More and more, it must be organized."

"We complain of the lowness of salaries, and they are low enough. But do we stop to realize that two-sevenths of all public revenues raised, speaking generally for the United States; and if you take account of national expenditures, it is still true that one-seventh of all public revenue, national, state and local, goes to the support of that work that you and I are engaged in—public education."

"When we view the thing from that standpoint, the standpoint of the taxpayer, this becomes a formidable statement. The highest public enterprise in which the American people are engaged, is public education. The demands made upon teachers are increasing, and we have now reached the time when the laymen who figure upon our school boards of education are quite unable to follow the more scientific nature of the work in which we are engaged. The consequence of that, is this: That we must evolve our own standards of professional success. We do not expect laymen to supervise hospitals, or the building of railroads, although, in the last analysis, the laymen must decide whether or not the demands of the public are being met. Those of us who have devoted our lives to the work of education must see to it that from year to year the standards improve."

DR. J. L. LAMOREUX
Chairman School Board

"The very greatest thing in this connection is the question whether or not those who are to take up, more and more, the teaching profession, are the people who will evolve scientific standards, and who will enter into and support the progressive evolution of this work. It is absolutely necessary that this should be done in a conservative, organized capacity. I take it that that is the most important reason for an organization of this kind. Along with the development of professional standards, comes the absolute necessity that we should in greater or less measure, participate in organized action."

"There are several types of organizations which must be recognized. There are the organizations which might be called hierarchical, and these that are homogeneous. The homogeneous group is exceedingly valuable, and I am ready to predict that it is going to be a type of organization that will be seen in constantly increasing numbers. I am confident that in proportion as our work becomes more complex, the standards of professional advancement must come from our own ranks."

"In many cities of Massachusetts the committee selects the text books that are used in the schools. There may come a time when the intelligent, sensible layman is a better judge of text books than the casual laborers who are employed as teachers; but if your work and mine reaches standards that are worth while, is it not evident that you and I should be more competent to choose the text books, than are the laymen?"

At this point the speaker was interrupted by applause, and he explained that if there was any local application in his reference, he was unconscious of the fact.

He then continued: "If the primary teachers of a community have not reached that state of educational and political attainment where they insist on the saying what is the best tools that they will use in their work, then that speaks badly for the primary teachers, or for the community in which they are working."

"On the basis of the broader view, we must evolve from our own midst the standards that will convince those who employ us that we know what we are doing."

"By the organization of homogeneous groups, nothing will become apparent sooner than that you have greatly multiplied your strength; and the temptation will come, to exploit the rest of the world. To this connection, the teacher must remember two things: First, that we are members not of a trade, but of a profession, and there are certain obligations attaching to a profession, that do not attach to a trade. The second is that they are members of a public, as opposed to a private service, and that as public servants they have certain obligations which to a large extent, deprive them of certain opportunities for concerted action that may be entirely legitimate in the case of those who are members of a private service."

"While we are raising the standards, we must also preserve the democratic character of the profession. Any development of public education that would be achieved at the expense of the democratic character would be in the long run fatal to the evolution of that education."

In closing, Dr. Snedden complimented the teachers upon the character of the entertainment provided by the organization.

Votes of thanks were given to the social committee, and to the speakers of the evening, after which the meeting adjourned.

At the conclusion of the address the speakers were tendered a vote of thanks, after which the meeting adjourned.

K. OF C.

TO ATTEND SACRED HEART CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY

The Burke Temperance Institute will be the guests of the Knights of Columbus on Thursday evening at the rooms, when a tournament of 45's will be held. The Knights have a good reputation as experts at the game and the visitors will endeavor to prove themselves superior. There will be ten teams from each society, three men on a team, and there should be some excitement.

Sunday, May 8, at 8 o'clock mass the council will receive holy communion at the Sacred Heart church, and it is expected that a large number will be on hand. On account of the church being in a distant part of the city, there will be special cars leave the square at 7.45, arriving at the church in time for mass.

After the mass there will be a breakfast served at the school hall, Moore street for the members, and a reception tendered the worthy chaplain, Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. A. I. in recognition of his recent promotion.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

The committee on lands and buildings, A. H. Qua chairman, met at the city hall this afternoon at 1 o'clock and went on a tour of inspection of buildings where improvements have been asked.

The public hall commission and the special committee on public hall, appointed by the city government, will meet at 8 o'clock this evening.

A meeting of the park commission is scheduled for 7.30 o'clock tomorrow night.

The board of charities will meet tomorrow night.

MAN WAS KILLED

Auto Bumped Into Telegraph Pole
at Milford, Conn.

MILFORD, Conn., May 4.—One man was killed and another badly hurt this morning when an automobile running at a rapid rate along New Haven avenue in an easterly direction bumped into a telegraph pole and was demolished. Two other men were in the car, but were unhurt. The dead man is supposed to have been Joseph O'Brien of Bridgeport.

The man who was hurt refused to give his name or any information about himself and refused to be removed to a hospital. He directed that he be taken to a hotel in Bridgeport. He has a broken leg and minor bodily injuries. Two other occupants of the car suffered little by being thrown from the car when it struck the pole. They also refused to give any information. The wrecked machine is said to have been racing with another which disappeared after the accident.

TWENTY FIVE YEARS

Of Activity by Lowell Cooperative Bank Celebrated by Banquet

The Lowell Co-operative bank celebrated the 25th anniversary of its organization last night at the banking rooms on the top floor of the Central block with a banquet. That the bank has been a success from the start and that each succeeding year has found it on a firmer basis than the previous years is a well known fact, and during the course of the addresses last night a history of the institution was given. The feature of the occasion was the presentation of a beautiful loving cup to Artemus B. Woodworth, who has been president of the bank since it was organized.

There were about 36 who gathered around the festive board and besides the excellent menu served by the D. L. Page Co., music was furnished by a Victor phonograph under the direction of John H. Colwell of M. Steinert & Sons Co.

After the menu had been discussed, Francis H. Appleton introduced Artemus B. Woodworth, the man who is the first and present president of the Lowell Co-operative bank.

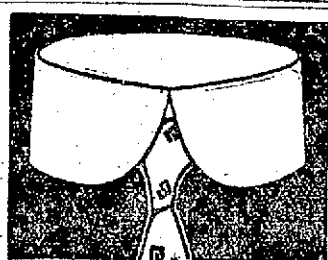

Mr. Woodworth was greeted with applause as he arose to speak. He referred to his 25 years service as president of the bank. He told of the inception of the bank and spoke in a reminiscent manner of the early years of its institution. He claimed that the Co-operative bank had justified itself by its help to the home builder of the American nation.

The next speaker was Daniel Eldredge of Boston. He was introduced as the dean of co-operative bankers in Massachusetts. After a few humorous remarks aimed at W. D. Brown, the speaker told of the struggle to get the legislature to pass the bill permitting the establishment of the cooperative banks. This was in April 33 years ago. Considering the great growth of such banks in this state he said he felt justly proud of his part in it.

History of the Bank
Secretary William D. Brown then gave an interesting history of the Lowell Co-operative bank, in part as follows:

"The first suggestion regarding a co-operative bank in Lowell was undoubtedly made by Mr. Stephen R. Kitchen, who has been vice president of our bank for the entire 25 years of its history."

year 1890 the assets had reached $131,157.20. Five years later (in 1895) they had risen to $230,820.41; in 1900 to $320,510.23; in 1905 to $435,542.61; and at the close of the 25th year the Lowell Co-operative bank's assets are $728,746.38.

"It is with great satisfaction that I call attention to the fact that this bank has helped more than 1100 shareholders in the buying, building or paying for their homes. The total number of loans on real estate has been 122, and the amount of money loaned in the 25 years on real estate is $1,669,315. The total amount loaned on shares (without real estate security in the 25 years) has been $247,734.

"At the present time the number of shareholders is 2017. Number of borrowers 442. Number of non-borrowers 1575.

"Of course, the bank has met with some losses, through failure of shareholders to meet their obligations, and it has in some instances been obliged to foreclose upon and sell properties. But it has always been in such condition that it could easily meet all these difficulties, and it has never been obliged to reduce its yearly dividend below the rate of 1 1/2 per cent. At the time of the explosion at Riverside park where several people were killed and a large number of homes were destroyed or damaged, there was some anxiety for a time as the bank had no fewer than 27 loans on property in that vicinity, but the crisis was passed safely, and the bank's losses did not exceed a total of $200 on all this property."

"The bank has included among its shareholders all classes of people—lawyers, mechanics, artisans, physicians, farmers, clerical men, national bank officers and employees, savings banks' treasurers and clerks—thus showing the widespread confidence in which the co-operative bank system is held. Nearly all the nationalities in our cosmopolitan city of Lowell are represented among our 2017 shareholders."

"It is with great satisfaction which I know will be shared by every one present, that I refer to the fact that the man who was chosen president of this bank in April, 1885, holds that position to the present day. The value of the service that has been rendered by this bank and its shareholders by Mr. Artemus B. Woodworth cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. Serving entirely without remuneration, his has been a labor of love, and to him is due a large share of the credit for the high position which the bank holds in this community today."

"George W. Bachelder, Esq., who was secretary and treasurer of the bank for years, holding that position until he felt obliged to lay down the burden because of advancing years, also served the bank faithfully and honestly, service which contributed greatly to its success."

"Besides President Woodworth and Vice President Kitchen, four of the original board of directors, Messrs. Thomas Collins, George W. Brothers, Edwin S. Bickford and James Markland, have continued on the board and have freely given their time and judgment to the prosperity of the bank. Mr. Brothers presented his resignation only last week. We regret to lose him from the board."

"The officers of the bank at the present time are: President, Artemus B. Woodworth; vice president, Stephen R. Kitchen; secretary, George W. Bachelder; treasurer, George E. Metcalf; directors, John Dobson, Thomas Collins, Albert N. Wheeler, James B. White, James D. Hartwell, Joseph M. Wilson, Joseph L. Sedgely, Enos O. Kingsley, Charles T. Rowland, George W. Brothers, Edwin S. Bickford, Robert Simpson, William A. Wright, James Markland and E. Gardfield Baker. Of this number five have died, viz.: William A. Wright, John Dobson, Albert N. Wheeler, James E. White and Enos O. Kingsley."

"In the 25 years of its history the Lowell Co-operative bank has been regularly and steadily successful in the purposes for which it was organized. It has done much in the way of teaching the people how to save their money systematically and wisely. It has inculcated in the hearts of many a desire to own their own homes, and it has been of untold value in assisting them to accomplish this object."

"Starting with comparatively few shareholders and small assets, in the

they have certainly been conservative, honest and economical, and the result is known."

Another good feature about our bank I might mention before closing is that it contributes to the welfare of the people of Lowell by loaning its money all in this immediate vicinity. We have very few loans on property located outside a four mile radius of the city hall. We have always been able to sell all the shares we cared to sell, and as a rule have readily loaned all our money at good rates of interest. It is with no little satisfaction that we refer again to the homes that our books show have been paid for through the medium of this bank and we repeat in the motto that has been adopted by the cooperative banks of the country, and to the real meaning of which they are contributing so much that is practical and durable, "The American Home, the Safeguard of American Liberty."

"It was at this point that one of the most interesting events of the evening occurred. J. Warren Bailey, president of the State Co-operative Bank League, arose, and after making interesting remarks relative to the local bank, presented President Woodworth with a handsome loving cup and cut glass dish, given to him as a mark of appreciation from his associates in the management of the bank."

Mr. Woodworth, though taken wholly by surprise, responded in a brief and appropriate manner. The cup is inscribed "Artemus B. Woodworth, from the directors of the Lowell Co-operative Bank, May 3, 1910."

Congratulatory speeches were given by Fisher H. Pearson and W. M. Sherwell of the other co-operative banks in the city.

The invited guests included men who have been prominent in co-operative bank affairs in the state and city. They were Daniel Eldredge of Boston, "the pioneer" of co-operative bankers; J. Warren Bailey of Boston, president of the West Somerville Co-operative bank; and William M. Sherwell, president of the Middlesex Co-operative bank, and Fisher H. Pearson, president of the B. F. Butler Co-operative bank of Lowell.

Letters were read from Bank Commissioner Arthur B. Chapin, ex-Gov. John Q. A. Brackett and Austin K. Chadwick of the Five Cent Savings Bank, Warren E. Guyette, Charles C. Drew, Henry Robinson, Caleb L. Smith, J. M. Kingsbury, W. M. Sherwell, Fisher H. Pearson, Stanley E. Qua, Charles H. McIntire, John Kearney, F. E. Appleton, John Gulline, Stephen R. Kitchen, J. Warren Bailey, Daniel Eldredge, Artemus B. Woodworth, Wm. D. Brown, Thomas Collins, E. S. Bickford, George H. Taylor, John Kerr and Robert F. Marden.

BIG CORPORATION

Has Been Formed in Fall River

FALL RIVER, May 4.—The new Charlton mills corporation has effected an organization with Earle P. Charlton as president and James Sinclair as treasurer. A temporary board of directors consisting of these two officials and John Estes and Charles Luther to act as a building and machinery committee was also elected.

The capital stock is $500,000, most of which has already been taken up. It is to be a strictly cash mill with no contracts nor promotion fees payable in stock. Its capacity will exceed 50,000 spindles and it will be equipped for the manufacture of fine goods. Building operations will be commenced within a few weeks.

"I have no eloquent peroration with which to close this rather fragmentary and incomplete history. We have been considering a very practical subject, and from that fact there is no need of rhetorical embellishment in stating what has been done. Doubtless when the bank started there were some who had reservations about its success, because its directors and managers were not men of great experience in financial matters. But

MAKING BUTTER

Westford People Using Surplus Milk Supply

A considerable amount of the surplus milk in the neighboring towns where the strike is on has been taken by the Cooperative Creamery at West Acton and the Lawrence creamery at Groton. Several of the people in Westford are making butter. About all the supply sent to Boston has been taken off the cars, but there are still a few of the farmers who continue to send to David Whitney & Son.

The supply kept back from the Bingham company is estimated at 250 to 275 cans. Many of the farmers are determined to keep up the strike until the milk contractors accede to their demands.

HUMANE SOCIETY

ASSOCIATION CATHOLIQUE

At a regular meeting of L'Association Catholique held last night it was voted to turn out in a body for the Festival procession tomorrow. A committee was appointed with Xavier Delisle as chairman, to make the necessary arrangements.

On Sunday, June 12, the association will celebrate its annual patronal feast, that of the Sacred Heart.

The members will receive communion in a body at St. Joseph's church in the morning, and in the afternoon will march preceded by a band and the French American military companies, to St. Jean Baptiste church, where a special service, with sermon will be held. Capt. Joseph L. Lamoureux of the Garde d'honneur was chosen chairman of the committee in charge of the June 12 turning out.

TIME IS UP

Our generous offer to put one thousand Gas Regulators on trial for sixty days met with quick response, and now we get the good news from all parts of the city of their saving from 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. of gas. Others are coming in fast and we can give you the names of hundreds of people that are satisfied with our Regulators. The trial offer time is up, but the price will remain the same, $2.00 including all connections. In some cases our Regulators have saved their cost in one month. They don't take long to pay for themselves, 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. soon counts up. You can see the demonstration at our office, where we can convince you beyond doubt of their great saving. WOLFGANG MADE GOOD

New Pitcher Gave Good Account of Himself

Wolfgang, the ex-Boston National leaguer, recently purchased at a goodly figure by Manager Gray, made his first appearance in a Lowell uniform yesterday and in a very short time convinced some several hundred fans that Mr. Gray had bought something.

Wolfgang allowed only six hits and kept them so scattered that they were harmless. He fielded his position faultlessly and much better than most pitchers while at the bat he was there with a single.

On first base was Mark Morse from the St. Louis Nationals. Morse fielded his position finely but he did nothing at the bat. Walter Foye, the Lowell player, appeared on the bench line in a Lowell uniform. Stone went behind the bat and played the position well while Huston took a rest.

Umpire Langan made his first appearance and satisfied the fans that as an umpire none of the N. E. league indicator-workers have anything on the little man with the big voice. Langan is the best man on balls and strikes that has been here this season, and he runs the game along without delay.

First Inning

There was some class to the first inning from a Lowell standpoint, for while the visitors were retired in one, two, three, the local players knocked Girard out of the box and scored three runs.

Cargo, the first man up for the visitors, fled to Jones. Metz fled to Boutles and Streater hit to Boutles and was out at first.

In the latter half of the inning Fitzpatrick opened with a foul fly to Daum. Campbell hit to left field for a two banger and Fitzpatrick followed with a lead on balls. Magee cranked the ball out to right field and Stovall allowed it to go by him and Campbell and Fitzpatrick scored. Stone singled to center field and Magee scored. At this point Girard was taken out of the box and Smith took his place. Jones struck out and Morse hit to Logan and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 3, Lynn 0.

Second Inning

The visitors scored a run in the second inning but Lowell failed to make a rally. Burg hit to Campbell and died at first. Logan drew a free pass and Stovall hit to Fitz and was retired at first. Dam, who formerly played with Lowell, hit one too hot for Fitz to handle and Logan scored. Daum hit to Boutles and was out at first.

In the latter half of the inning Boutles drew a base on balls and was second on Wolfgang's sacrifice. Fitz singled and Boutles went to third, but Fitz was nailed while trying to steal second. Campbell was third out on a fly to Stovall.

Score—Lowell 3, Lynn 1.

Third Inning

In the third inning Smith hit to Campbell and was out at first. Cargo sent a grounder in Fitz and failed to reach first, while Metz fled to Boutles.

In Lowell's half Fitzpatrick hit to Cargo and was out at first. Magee followed with a base on balls but was thrown out while trying to steal second. Stone was third out on a fly to Streater.

Score—Lowell 3, Lynn 1.

Fourth Inning

Streater hit to Wolfgang and was thrown out at first. Burg was given a base on balls. Logan fouled off to Campbell, who made a pretty running catch. Burg stole second but overrunning the base was tagged out by Fitz.

Jones fled to Streater and Morris struck out. Boutles singled, but Wolfgang fled to Cargo.

Score—Lowell 3, Lynn 1.

Fifth Inning

In the fifth inning Stovall hit to Wolfgang and was out at first. Dam struck out and Daum singled to center field but Smith was third out on a strike.

Lowell got two more runs in the fifth. Fitz opened with a single and Campbell hit to Dam and was out at first. Fitzpatrick, batting left handed, had two strikes called on him. He suddenly shifted to right hand batting and the first ball sent over he sent out to left field for three bases scoring. Fitz Magee singled to right field and scored. Fitzpatrick, Stone cranked a fly to right field but Stovall instead of trying to catch it, in the air got it on the bounce and Magee was thrown out at second. Stone being safe at first, Jones got a scratch single over second base, but Morse hit to Logan and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 5, Lynn 1.

Sixth Inning

Cargo opened the sixth inning with a single. Metz hit to Wolfgang forcing Cargo at second. Streater fled to Magee and Burg followed with a single by third base. Logan hit to Campbell forcing out Metz.

In Lowell's half Boutles hit to Cargo and was retired at first. Wolfgang fouled off to Daum. Fitz then made his third hit, it being a single to left field. Campbell hit to Logan and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 5, Lynn 1.

Seventh Inning

Stovall was the first man up in the seventh and hitting a grounder to Fitz was out at first. Dam struck out and Daum hit to Fitz and was out at first.

With the bases filled and but one man out in the latter half of the inning Lowell failed to score. Fitzpatrick, the first man up, struck out. Morse singled and Stone and Jones drew bases on balls, filling the bases. Morris, the new man, struck out and Boutles went out, Smith to Metz.

Score—Lowell 5, Lynn 1.

Eighth Inning

Smith opened the eighth with a single. Cargo hit a slow grounder to Boutles and beat the ball out to first for a single. Metz hit to Morris who threw the runner out at first. Wolfgang covering the base, Streater hit to Wolfgang and Smith was thrown out at the plate. Burg fled to Magee and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 5, Lynn 1.

Ninth Inning

In the ninth inning Logan fled out to Streater. Stovall struck out. Dam hit to Boutles and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 5, Lynn 1.

THE INCOME TAX

Was a Subject of Debate in the Legislature

BOSTON, May 4.—The house yesterday spent nearly all day, after running through the calendar, in debating the income tax amendment to the federal constitution. The question came on the motion by Mr. Riley of Maine to substitute his resolve favoring the amendment for an adverse report of the committee on federal relations. Those who spoke for the bill yesterday were Riley and Dean, democrats. Charles R. Brown of Medford, chairman of the committee on federal relations, led the fight against the Riley resolve. He was assisted by Dean of Woburn, republican.

At the time of adjournment Mr. Dean was talking. Debate was resumed at the morning session of the house today.

Rep. Riley spoke for 45 minutes, declaring that the question is the most important coming before the legislature in a generation.

He declared that up to 1895 congress had the power to levy an income tax, and exercised it for years, but in that year it was wiped out by a court decision, leaving this the only nation in the civilized world without that power.

He said the chief argument thus far advanced against the proposition is that Massachusetts would pay in such a tax more than she would receive, and that she should keep the tax for herself. Answering the argument, he said the function of government is to protect property, and if Massachusetts has more property to protect it should be willing to pay more for the protection, because it costs more.

He described at length the message written by Gov. Hughes against the law, and pointed out that the governor dealt with only one phase of the matter, which is a minor one.

income tax, said it may be true that the rich as a class are not bearing their just share of the country's burden, but the suggestion does not contain the remedy, because, in his opinion, such a tax would only add to the burden of the poorer class.

Stripped of its political aspects and considered only on its merits, he believed there would be little agitation for the bill, and charged that its passage by congress was only a concession of the western states in return for votes for the tariff bill.

He showed that Massachusetts' contribution to such a tax would be entirely out of proportion to her representation in congress, the logical result being that Massachusetts money will be used for extravagant expenditures in other states.

He said his committee favors the principle of an income tax, but believes it should be conserved to the uses of this commonwealth.

Mr. Bean of Woburn pointed out that congress now has the right to levy an income tax provided it is distributed among the states according to population, but so long as states having but one-sixth of the population have a majority of the national senate, Massachusetts should oppose any attempt to take her wealth for the benefit of others.

Mr. Dean of Wakefield favored the tax and declared that had the government not had the power to levy it at the time of the Civil war there might have been a different story to tell of that war.

Labor Bills Put Over

In the senate yesterday all of the labor bills were again postponed for various reasons.

On motion of Senator Teeling of Boston, the "fishermen's peaceful picketing" bill was postponed till today because Senator Russ of New Bedford was absent; on motion of Senator Mahoney the "eight-hour" bill was put over till today; because Senator Tuttle was absent; on motion of Senator Mulligan the "seamen's union" bill went over till today owing to the absence of the same senator.

The Canning K. of L. eight hour bill had to be postponed also and the "trade union fines" bill was put over, too.

Senator White of "the Cape" asked unanimous consent to change the postponement of the Cape Cod canal bill from Monday next till tomorrow. Senator Mahoney objected and the motion failed.

Reject Milk Bill

The senate rejected the "pasteurized milk" bill after Senator Mellen of Brookfield had made a statement in reply to Senator Parker of Boston that the committee on agriculture unani-

THE AUTO LAW

Is to be Enforced in Nashua

NASHUA, N. H., May 4.—The Nashua board of trade took up at length yesterday the violation of the speed regulations by automobiles in this city and ended by passing a resolution urging a strict enforcement of the law.

The matter was first broached by George Sylvester, through whom several others appeared and spoke on the question. Mr. Sylvester is an automobile owner and it is said that the request for the enforcement of the speed laws emanates from a Nashua automobile club which is now in the process of organization.

Mr. Sylvester was followed by Edward H. Wason, Lester P. Thurber and other automobile owners, ex-Mayor William H. Beason, W. L. Carter and Rev. William Porter Niles, all appealing for the enforcement of the law relative to speeding and lights on automobiles. Mr. Wason alleged that members of the police force were ignorant of the laws governing the lighting of lamps, the carrying of licenses and such things. The principal complaint was against tourists going from Boston to the mountains.

Dr. A. E. Brown, the owner of a car, which, it is claimed, will do better than 60 miles an hour, was the only one who spoke in defense of automobiles. He declared that under the 15-mile speed a car could be better controlled than at 10 miles an hour. He also claimed that the new state roads were not being torn up by automobiles as stated, but by heavy farming.

The special committee, consisting of W. H. Beason, W. L. Carter and James H. Tolles, which with others conferred with President Tuttle regarding freight delays on the Boston & Maine railroad, made its report. This report developed an interesting fact in the announcement that Mr. Carter in shipping two consignments of goods on one day from this city, one to Haverhill, Mass., 36 miles away, and the other to Liverpool, Eng., had received notice that the Liverpool consignment had arrived at its destination a day before the Haverhill shipment.

JOSEPH JOHNSON
RETIRE FROM THE PARK DEPARTMENT

Mr. Joseph H. Johnson, a popular and efficient employee of the park and commons for the past ten years severed his connection with the department on Saturday last to assume the duties of police officer to which position he was appointed as supernumerary a few weeks ago. During his service in the park department he made many friends and being thoroughly familiar with all branches of the work he will be greatly missed by the superintendent, Charles A. Whitet, to whom he has been a faithful employee. His many friends throughout the city wish him success in his new field of labor.

PRIZE OF $10,000
ATLANTA, Ga., May 4.—Charles K. Hamilton, in his Curtiss biplane, flew yesterday from the Atlanta speedway to the town of Jonesboro and return, a distance of about 16 miles in a little less than 18 minutes. Hamilton announces that when he returns to the city he will try for a $10,000 prize offered by a New York paper for a flight from New York to Albany.

A QUIET MARRIAGE
LINCOLN, Neb., May 4.—Mrs. Ruth Lynn Leavitt, eldest daughter of William J. Bryan, was quietly married yesterday to Lieutenant Richard C. Owen of the Royal engineer corps of the British army, stationed in Jamaica. Only members of the family witnessed the ceremony.

The rooms were decorated with palms, Easter lilies and lilies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Owen left for Jamaica, the route not being definitely determined in advance.

The bridegroom is 26 years of age. He is the son of T. C. Owen, a business man of London. His mother is not living. Mr. Owen took the examination and entered the engineering branch of the British government service at Jamaica, and according to the government rules, will not be recalled to the mother country until after completing a term of three years.

Ruth Bryan was first married nearly seven years ago, when 15 years of age to William Homer Leavitt, an artist nearly twice her age. She got a divorce from Leavitt in March, 1909, with absolute custody of their two children. The children are now in Germany.

VOTE TO STRIKE
NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 4.—The polling of the telegraphers of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. on the question of striking because the road has refused to grant an increase of wages, was completed last night. The vote was not officially counted, owing to the non-arrival of an official of the union, but it is understood that 98 per cent of the votes were in favor of such a course. It is also understood that the New Haven company will make a stand in the case of the telegraphers and will not grant their demands.

CARD OF THANKS
The undersigned wish to express their heartfelt thanks to the many friends who so generously lent their assistance in their recent bereavement, also to those who sent floral offerings.

BOATS COLLIDED
Accident Occurred Off Cape Cod

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 4.—A rumor reached here early today that two steamers had been in collision somewhere off Cape Cod and that passengers of one vessel were being taken off by the other boat. Word was sent out by wireless to intercept the wrecking tug Tascos, half way between Providence and New London, to turn back and give assistance. The name of one of the steamers was mentioned as the Santurce a freight steamer which left Boston for New York yesterday.

Word of this collision reached here through Captain Scott of the Scott Wrecking Co. at New London, Conn. He said he had received word to send out one of his vessels, the Tascos, to give assistance to two steamers which had been in collision. As the Tascos was at sea, an attempt was made to reach her through the Point Judith wireless station. Interference with wireless communication had been very pronounced all night.

Captain Scott did not tell where the message came from in the first place. As an instance of the trouble the wireless operators were having last night the naval wireless station at Newport was unable for some time to get into communication with its nearest wireless neighbor at Point Judith. At first it was thought that the rumor was a "wireless fake" but the names of the Santurce and the Tascos are not familiar to even the keenest of amateurs.

DID NOT SELECT DATE FOR ANNUAL MUSTER
BOSTON, May 4.—The selection of the date and place for the annual muster of the New England Firemen's league, usually the chief business of the May meeting, was not decided yesterday at the session held in the Faneuil Hall building.

A committee of three was appointed from the floor after a spirited discussion lasting nearly two hours, to name the day and location. The committee is made up of Capt. John H. Barber of Central Falls, R. I., Capt. H. H. Wilcox of Taunton and M. P. Cavanaugh of Roxbury.

A representative of the Fall River association declared that his organization had pledged from the business men of that city for $2500. During the discussion Fall River appeared to be the favorite location.

The Indian Orchard association withdrew its application for withdrawal from the league. No action was taken on the application of the Boston association for withdrawal from the league.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Plottie, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

The world will wonder why Lowell will not hold any great auto race this year. It would take too long to explain.

The talk about Theodore Roosevelt recommending William Loeb for governor to succeed Governor Hughes seems too ridiculous to believe and yet it is distinctly Rooseveltian.

Charles J. Glidden, formerly of Lowell but now of general aero fame, is officiating as sky pilot for people who aspire to fly to the heavens if they can get there in no other way.

If the new arrangement for the selection of text books will put a stop to arbitrary, unintelligent, needless and expensive changes as we believe it will, then for that the school board deserves credit. The schools will be saved the indignity and the taxpayers the expense.

Fortunately but few of the threatened strikes occurred on May Day. Fortunately also the threatened milk strike did not take place. The strike is a two-edged sword that not infrequently inflicts more injury on the user than on the party at whom the blow is aimed.

There is a good deal of apparent absurdity in the effort of Coleman, the Cambridge bank looter, to fasten responsibility for his own crime upon big Bill Kelliber or anybody else. If Coleman did his duty, how could any outside party interfere with the operations of the bank?

If the Huntington hall commission does not possess the authority to construct public baths in conjunction with a public hall the city council can give the needed power. It is well, however, to have clear ideas as to the scope of the commission's powers.

TUBERCULOSIS CAMP.

Some cities of Massachusetts, notably Springfield and Lawrence among the rest, provide outdoor hospitals for the care of consumptives during the warm weather. The results, no doubt, warrant the expense. The small way in which the camp is maintained at the Lowell General hospital in this city indicates what can be done.

NEW RESERVOIR NECESSARY.

The proposition of the water board for a new reservoir on Centralville heights to afford greater pressure for fire service in the Highlands and at the same time to enable the department to clean out the old reservoir is one that must soon be considered, because it is a public necessity involving the greater safety of life and property in the Highlands and the guaranteed purity of our water service.

THE MIDDLEMAN IN THE MILK BUSINESS.

The contractor or middleman is causing most of the trouble over the sale and price of milk in Boston. As the contractors have yearly contracts with the railroads they can probably get all the milk they need outside the trouble zone. The fact remains, however, that the producers should have equal facilities for shipping their milk to the cities in which it is sold. This privilege would enable them to dispense with the middleman.

Here in Lowell there is danger that the imposition of unnecessary and expensive red tape in the sale of milk may drive many farmers out of the business, so as to give way to a trust that will bring milk from a great distance. The milk collected from parts of New Hampshire, Maine and Vermont would not be nearly so good as that which the careful farmer in the suburbs of Lowell produces and delivers to his customers. The coming of a trust to Lowell would mean the elimination of the producer and the introduction of imported milk. That would put most of the present milkmen out of business.

NEW SOURCE OF GRAFT.

The fact may not yet be quite apparent, but it will come out in due time that a new fangled source of governmental graft will be disclosed in the touring cars provided for legislators and public officials. Already the signs are unmistakable from congress down to the ordinary city. Certain officials must have autos to carry them wherever they want to go. This is but right and more effective work may thus be done if the officials take care of the autos. But if the machines be used for joy rides or loaned to friends they will soon get out of repair, and once a municipal auto shows any imperfection it will soon be traded off for a new one. Even the cure of an auto costs considerable, and in a city in which from ten to a dozen are used by the officials, the cost becomes an important item. The cost of autos of the municipality will be more valuable than the old broken-down horses that are sent to pass the remainder of their days in peace at the city farm. There will be a demand for them at a low price, although with slight repairs they might be made to last for years.

The cities of the country are fast equipping with automobiles where horses were used before for the heads of departments and in some cases to take the place of fire horses. This change is bound to come in fire departments all over the country, so that the sale of automobiles for fire service alone will be enormous, once the auto fire engine shall have supplanted the fire steeds, some of these of thrilling memory.

Only close scrutiny and strict economy will protect the taxpayers from dishonesty during the transition period from horse to auto if we are to judge from conditions that prevail in other cities.

GOVERNMENT SEEDS

How dear to his heart is the little farm garden. My congressman pictures with land also dear. The lettuce, the cabbage (with heads that won't burden) And the peas (they peek out intent not to be hurt). The gaudy tomatoes and peppers he mails me! On each little packet of government seeds! The wee little packet, the partly filled packet, The elderly packet of government seeds!

How sweet from the capitol mill to receive it (A present superb for a farmer like me) Not a full packet purchased from seeds man (believe it!) Can equal these seeds in their antiquity. But now I've abandoned my rural vocations. A tear of remembrance its furrowed course leads. For the April I fed to my poultry a ration of useless, inanimate government seeds—A wee little packet, a partly filled packet, An elderly packet of government seeds.—M. G. Frank Murphy, who has taken the count many a time in the fistie arena, had an experience with a horse that he hired in this city a few days ago and he admits that while bystanders were amused he was much chagrined. He was coming in from Lakeview and the horse was doing first rate. Frank had a word of complaint to offer until he struck Collinville. The mill whistle announced the noon hour and that was the end of Frank's horse to the stock yard. Frank pleaded with him to "move on" but in vain. Mill hands on their way to dinner listened to the eloquent pleading of Frank and marveled at the power of the horse to stand out against it. From the stock yard, the old horse, Frank drifted into the channels of different words, but the horse refused to budge. Everybody was giving Frank the laugh. He had gone back to his seat on the wagon and was looking very sad when the 1 o'clock whistle blew. Imagine Murphy's surprise to see the old horse pick up his ears and beat it down the road immediately upon the sound of the whistle. The sequel to the whole thing is this: the horse, several years ago, had been employed as a cart horse in a mill yard and he has never been able to forget the horse's disappointment at not being fed between whistles was as great as Murphy's discomfiture.

TWO INSANE MEN

Were Captured By Manchester Police

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 4.—Joseph Walway, aged 25, and Ambrose Van Buskirk, aged 16, who escaped Monday night from the Dauvers, Mass., asylum for the insane, were arrested in this city last evening by Policeman Charles L. Wood. The officer observed Walway at the electric car transfer station on Elm street and recognized him from the description furnished by the asylum authorities. He took him to the police headquarters where Walway claimed to be an attendant at the state hospital at Concord. While the examination of Walway was in progress, Policeman Wood walked into the station with Van Buskirk whom he had found at the transfer station. Van Buskirk, who is regarded as dangerous, having in a alleged murdered Mrs. Catherine Grey of Lawrence by beating her in her head with a stone, did not deny his identity.

A PRIZE FIGHTER

"Pete" Burg Says He Once Was One

The following is from the Lynn item: Pete Burg, diminutive third sacker for Bill Hamilton's collection of ball, said he had the prize ring to uplift the national game, according to a story he told while resting his feet on a brass rail in the Hotel Seymour during off hours. Sometimes he feels sorry that he did not continue in the squared circle, especially when the umpires give him a wrong deal. Pete was a Chicagoan at the time he decided to change his vocation of prize fighter to that of baseball artist. He carried almost as much weight then as he does now, except when he was preparing to go into the ring and had received sufficient notice from the club management as to what they expected him to do to his opponent.

Pete's first experience was a satisfactory to him and the members of the club before which the fight was held that he continued at the demonstrations of self-defense for three successive bouts, meeting bantamweight featherweight and lightweight. It was when Burg was asked to put on the mitts with a heavyweight that he decided to quit the ring and become a ball player. "I never mind the name of the club," said Pete to Chick Fargo, who seemed like a doubting Thomas, but nevertheless was willing to hear Pete tell of his winning fights. "I used to go there every night and watch some of the fighters getting into shape for bouts which were put on every Friday night. I was allowed a ringside seat at the fight, and I was an ardent rooter for the best man."

"One night, after two lesser bouts had been put on, the matchmaker of the club worked his way in to my seat, and getting my ear, whispered: 'Pete, come on out; I want to talk to you. There was a rattling good bout on at the time, and I wanted to see the finish, but the boss wouldn't stand for it.'"

"Come on, he said, so I went outside with him. Leading me to my private office, he told me that one of the fellows who was to go on in the bantamweight class for the star bout of the night was not to be present. He'd changed his mind about fighting, so the boss said, and the club management was in an awful stew as to what they would do to fill the bill."

Pete's First Fight "Finally the boss told me that he wanted me to go on and take the absent fighter's place. I never seen either one of the fighters much, but the fellow I was going to fight, but that didn't make any difference. The manager led me to a dressing room, and I climbed into a pair of flannels. When the time came for the bout I was led out, wrapped up like an Indian in a big blanket, and crawled through the ropes into the ring. "My opponent was sitting on a stool in his corner of the ring, and he grinned when he saw me. I was much shorter than he was, and he had a few pounds of weight on me. I didn't pay much attention to him, and my referee introduced us and we stepped to the center of the ring to shake hands. As he stuck out his hand to grasp mine, the other fellow whispered, 'Young fellow, keep going for you.'"

"That's all he had time to say, for I just reached up and handed one clout on his jaw, and before the sound of the gong had died out he was taking the count. I climbed out of the ring, got $6 from the club management and went home after dressing. Two Others Down and Out "A couple of weeks later I went on at the same club against a lightweight, and I fought him before he had a chance to send out signals of distress. It was very easy money for me, and I agreed, two weeks later, to go on against an unknown. That fellow happened to be a middleweight, and I disposed of him as easy as the others. I should have continued in the game if it hadn't been for the fact that two weeks later the matchmaker came to me and said he had been disappointed again, and wanted me to take the place of the absent fighter. "I didn't do any training for my previous fights, because they had been so easy to win, and I told the boss I would be all right and I'd have the loss it. The house was packed that night, and I felt that I would win as easily as I had on the other nights, but I changed my mind when I got into the ring. The announcer introduced me, and when the man in the ring, another corner got off his stool and stood up to bow to the crowd I saw he was six feet tall and weighed about three times as much as I did. I just took a look at him, shouted 'Good night' to the crowd and got out of the ring quick as I could. "The next day I started playing baseball and I've kept at it ever since. I wouldn't be here if I had put my hands up against that heavyweight boxer."

The masquerade party in Colonial hall last night in aid of the Day Nursery was a great success. The dancers were masked until 10 o'clock and at the unmasking the prizes were awarded to Miss Caroline Wright, who all in gold on, was "Pumpkin"; Thomas Clark as "Buster Brown," and Geo. Jefferson as a Monkey. Others in the masquerade were: Miss Pessie Chaffoux, as "Folly"; Miss Polly Farrington, as Dutch maid; Miss Florence Plunkett, as "Little Bo-Peep"; Harry Brown, as a Chief; Miss Catherine Tucke, as a French maid; Parker Tucke, as a Mexican; Alvah Weaver, as a policeman; Harry Chaffoux, as an Arab; Miss Louise Parker, as a French maid; Harold Gould, of Kennelworth, Me., as an Italian cavalier; French knight, as a cowboy; Winfield Towne, of Kennelworth, Me., as an Italian cavalier; Allen Williams as a girl; Miss Helen Nesmith, as a French maid; Miss Rebecca Bartlett, as a French maid; Paul Hester of Grand Rapids, Mich., as a sailor; Carolyn Holt, of Grand Rapids, Mich., as a sailor; and others.

The mysteries of the party were two young ladies who appeared as a cowboy and cowgirl, and who at the time of unmasking left the hall. Their identities were not revealed. Intermission came at 11 o'clock, after which there was dancing until midnight. The patronesses of the party were: Mrs. E. E. Bell, Mrs. F. C. Church, Mrs. E. M. Tucke, Mrs. Percy Parker, Mrs. T. R. Parker, Mrs. Lewis MacBrayne, Mrs. Warren O. Winsor, Mrs. Frederick Bogardus, Mrs. Robert E. Marden, Mrs. Arthur C. Prince, Mrs. Harry Read, Mrs. Marietta Jefferson, Mrs. F. C. Plunkett, Mrs. Julian Talbot. The committee in charge consisted of Messrs. John P. Davis, Ralph A. Bean, Willard Morrison, Arthur Varman, J. M. Abbott, Fredericus Parker and Dr. Harold B. Plunkett.

SECOND DIVORCE

Has Been Granted to Brockton Woman

BROCKTON, May 4.—For the second time in three years Mrs. Nellie M. Spaulding of this city yesterday obtained a divorce decree nisi from her husband, Charles B. Spaulding of Dorchester, a well known pianist in Boston and Nantasket, where he has played for several years in amusement resorts. As in the first divorce libel Mrs. Spaulding charged her husband with gross and confirmed habits of intemperance.

The Spauldings were married about ten years ago. In 1907 Mrs. Spaulding obtained a divorce in the Plymouth county superior court. Two years later, March 29, 1909, the couple remarried. Mrs. Spaulding testified yesterday before Judge Stevens that she agreed to the second marriage because her divorced husband pleaded so hard for a reconciliation. "After you knew what his habits were," the court asked. "Well, I loved him and after I obtained a divorce I wondered what he was doing. He pretended to quit drinking, and so we were married," was the wife's answer.

For three weeks the remarried couple lived happily on Walnut street, this city, then went to live with Mrs. Spaulding's mother, Mrs. Hannah Stone, on North Montello street. Then their troubles began again.

AN ENTIRE TOWN COL. ROOSEVELT

In Vermont Was Men- Accorded Royal Honors
aced By Fire in Copenhagen

BELLINGSFALL, Vt., May 4.—The largest fire North Walpole has had for years broke out last night about 9.30 in the wholesale bakery of William Duffy on Center street in the most thickly populated section of the town. North Walpole has only a small department and the fire was soon beyond control.

This town was called upon for aid and the entire department was finally sent. The flames spread to the grocery store adjoining, thence to the tenement house of Patrick Ratchford, which was wiped out. Daniel Connors' house caught several times, but strenuous efforts saved the buildings.

The fire then jumped across the street to the houses of Jerry Wolf and Robert Howard, but owing to a slight shift of the wind and a heavy rain, both were saved. William Duffy was asleep over his store and was awakened, escaping with a little bit of boots. His loss will be about $10,000 and he is insured for $44,000. The house of Patrick Ratchford, at $2500, was insured for $1100. A large icehouse, bakery and barn in the square were burned. They had no insurance. The entire damage will approximate $20,000.

A BIG SUCCESS

The board of selectmen met Monday night and signed the street lighting contract for the year. The contract calls for 117 lights. Two additional lights are to be installed, one at the corner of Wilson street and Talbot avenue and the other at Sprague's bridge.

The meeting of the board of fire engineers was held Monday night, and George C. Crosby was elected chief engineer of the department for the coming year. John Baker was elected secretary of the board. Chief Crosby will also act as forest warden, the selectmen voting recently to appoint the chief engineer to that position.

The fire engineers appointed Charles E. Fairbrother captain, and Roger Farrington assistant captain of steamers company No. 1. Captain Fairbrother assumed the duties of his new office last night, when he presided over the meeting of that company held in the engine house at North Billerica.

The annual roll call and election of officers of the North Billerica Baptist church was held Monday night in the church vestry. The meeting opened with a banquet, after which officers were elected. Rev. Charles H. Williams, Ph. D., the pastor, presided during the session.

During the business meeting the following officers were elected: Clerk, Mrs. Nancy Latham; treasurer, Archibald Ritchie; deacons, John E. Rowell, Alex. Allan, Jonas Watmough, John Dewhurst; standing committee, Mrs. James Sutcliffe, Mrs. Nancy Latham, Mrs. Ivory M. Hanson, John E. Rowell, John Dewhurst, Alex. Allan, Jonas Watmough, No. 1. Captain Fairbrother, Alex. Ritchie, Leroy Spaulding, Miss Walker, Mrs. Carrie Booth, Miss Nellie Rutledge; nominating committee, Mrs. James Sutcliffe, Mrs. A. Allan, Archibald Ritchie.

Mr. Ritchie, the new treasurer of the church, succeeds the late Thomas E. Spaulding, who served in that capacity for a period of nearly 41 years, being chosen in 1869. A brief address was delivered by Rev. Mr. Williams, and there was a duet by Mrs. Carrie Booth and Miss Agnes Allan.

GETS $13,750

BOY WHO LOST LEG IS GIVEN VERDICT

NEW YORK, May 4.—The sum of $13,750 for the loss of a leg was awarded to Harold Schaffter, the 15 year old son of a policeman, by the appellate division of the supreme court yesterday, affirming a decision of the lower court. It is the latest verdict ever upheld here for such injury.

Young Schaffter was struck by an iron bar protruding from a work car as he stood on a platform of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railway at the Bronx. As he had a commutation ticket in his pocket, and was waiting for a train, the court held that he was to all intents a passenger.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla Nerves

GAME WAS BALKED

Suspicious of a Boston Woman Saved Her $2000

BOSTON, May 4.—Victor Terra, 30 years old, whose picture is in the rogues' gallery and who, the police believe, is a professional confidence man, was held in $2000 pending an examination May 10 on a charge of attempted larceny when arraigned in the municipal court yesterday. Before his case is reached Sergeant Gallivan and Special Officers Flynn and O'Donnell, of the North End police station will investigate the story of Mrs. Mary Elans of Malden, who alleges that Terra and another, who is at liberty, had planned to rob her of $2000.

The police are looking for the other man, who is known only to the woman as "Little John."

A week ago Monday, according to her story, Mrs. Elans met "Little John" in a hotel in the North End, and he represented to her that he was very rich. A legacy of $15,000 which he had inherited from his father he said he intended to use to alleviate the sufferings of cripples and in helping the blind. "Little John" said that he had been told that Mrs. Elans was prominent in charity work and told her it was his wish that she act as his agent in the distribution of his fortune.

"Little John" claimed to be a real philanthropist. He introduced Terra to her and the latter also claimed to have money that he was willing to donate for the aid of the blind and the crippled.

The woman met the two men several times. The police declare that when the man felt that they were in possession of her confidence they suggested to her that she draw $2000 from the bank to put with like amounts they were to post, the total being used for buying a house. It was not clear to her why she should buy any house. She suspected something was wrong, believing, she said yesterday, that Terra was a schemer. She trusted "Little John" implicitly. Monday afternoon she kept an appointment with the two men, bringing with her the $2000. "Little John" did not appear, but Terra did. Terra asked her if she had her $2000 and she replied that she had, whereupon she said Terra produced a package he said contained $2700. He was willing to contribute that amount, remarking there was nothing mean about him.

She asked Terra to meet her later in the afternoon and he consented. She then consulted Sergeant Gallivan and Special Officers O'Donnell and Flynn. They were watching when she met Terra the second time. Learning he was being watched Terra ran away, pursued by the policemen, being captured after a chase of several blocks.

While he was running away he dropped the package the woman said he had produced, claiming it contained $2700. The police found it contained two genuine $1 bills, a bogus $100 bill and a wad of newspaper clippings.

When Terra was at headquarters yesterday it was learned that last August he had been sentenced to serve six months in the house of correction for attempting to pick pockets last summer.

Mrs. Elans is married to a prosperous Italian and has a handsome residence at Malden, the police say. Every time she came to the city she visited the hotel at the North End, her husband being well-known there, and believes that the man, knowing of her generosity, decided to attempt swindling her on that score.

TRENT TRIAL ENDED

The Jury May Present Its Verdict This Afternoon

PROVIDENCE, May 4.—The taking of evidence in the trial of William Trent, charged with the murder of William Meagher in his grocery store in Pawtucket in February, was concluded at today's session. It is expected that the jury will retire later in the day.

With the introduction of Joe Dickson, a sailor with whom Trent roomed at the time the murder was committed and who testified that Trent was away from the boarding house on the night of the murder, the state rested its case. Testifying in his own behalf, Trent stated that he was at the boarding house on the evening of the murder and immediately denied all the testimony given by the state's witnesses.

The defense introduced Mrs. Mary Howard, who conducted the boarding house in which both Dickson and Trent roomed, together with her three daughters, who testified that on the night of the murder Trent remained at home and did not leave the house during the evening.

THE BLACK HAND

Blamed for Attack on Politician's Home

PAWTUCKET, R. I., May 4.—Bernard A. Keenan, one of the most powerful politicians in this city, is considerably frightened over what looks like a plan of his enemies, to try to drive him out of the city.

Keenan yesterday complained to the police that Monday night, while his sister and her daughter were in his house, 108 Cottage street, three large stones were hurled through different windows of the building.

It was not until yesterday, when he reported the incident of Monday night, that he revealed to the police that he had previously received two threatening letters signed "The Black Hand." He believes the stones throwing and the letters have some connection with each other.

Keenan received his first "Black Hand" letter March 28. This communication told Keenan to leave Pawtucket at once or he would suffer the consequences. Keenan paid no attention to it, and it was followed a few days later by another missive, in which was enclosed a newspaper clipping containing an account of the blowing up of a house by dynamite. Appended to the clipping was: "This is what is going to happen to your house."

Keenan was at one time a prominent democrat, but a few years ago became a republican, and since then his political enemies have made him the subject of many campaign attacks. His desertion of the democratic party has been criticized quite severely. Keenan is a member of the license board and it is said he has been responsible for denying quite a number of applications for licenses, and for this cause it is stated that he has incurred the enmity of a number of unsuccessful applicants.

Herbert Newell, who lives near Keenan, heard the crash of glass, and, looking out of his house, saw two men step out of the Keenan porch and hurry away.

STEEPLE HARRY

HAD NARROW ESCAPE FROM SERIOUS INJURY

Steeple Harry, the fellow who painted the flag pole on the Colonial building, has painted the flag pole on Odd Fellows building in Middlesex street, and while so doing had a narrow escape from serious injury. His nerve and presence of mind saved him.

While near the top of the pole the rope by which he held himself slipped and he saved himself by casting aside

MOULDERS STRIKE

Trouble at the Lowell Machine Shop

Sixty iron moulders went out on strike from the Lowell Machine shop this morning. The exact cause of their grievance was not learned. Supt. Morton was not at his office this afternoon and a man in the office stated that in the absence of Mr. Morton there wasn't anybody in authority to discuss the matter.

THE REFEREE

FOR BIG FIGHT MAY BE SELECTED TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Speculation was rife today among sports as to who would be chosen at this afternoon's conference to referee the Jeffries-Johnson mill. So many names have been suggested and the field of selection is so large that there was little unanimity of opinion regarding the probable choice.

The arrival of Jeffries in Oakland last night for the purpose of accompanying his wife back to Ben Lomond was so coincident with the meeting as to give rise to the belief that he would remain for participation in the conference.

Two denials came from the opposing factions yesterday. Sam Berger denied the report that there is to be a shakeup in Jeffries' training camp, that there are too many old men at Ben Lomond and not enough young rawbones. Jack Johnson denied a story to the effect that he had wired a friend in Chicago not to post a bet that the fight would take place July 4 as scheduled.

LADIES' AUXILIARY, A. O. H.

Division 1, of the Ladies Auxiliary, A. O. H., held a well attended meeting in Hibernian hall last night. There was a large attendance and during the course of the evening considerable business of importance was transacted. Seven new members were initiated and arrangements were completed for the May party which is to be held on May 30th.

Sunday, May 15th, will be communion Sunday and it is expected that there will be a large attendance. Communion will be received at St. Peter's church. At the conclusion of the meeting a musical and literary program was carried out.

KING DEPOSED

SOUTH SEA ISLANDERS PUT ANOTHER ON THRONE

VICTORIA, B. C., May 4.—Because they deposed the king of Wallis island and placed another chief on his throne, the blacks of the South Sea Islands are to be visited by a French warship in June, according to news brought here by the steamer Makura. The trouble arose over the French residents banishing a prominent chief in the king's name. The banished man's friends went straight to the king's town and forcibly removed him. Wallis island is a French protectorate.

PRESIDENT TAFT

Dedicated the Heroic Statue of
Theodore Thomas

CINCINNATI, O., May 4.—President Taft wound up a day of renewing old acquaintances by appearing before a brilliant and enthusiastic throng at the opening of Cincinnati's annual May music festival last night, as the dedicatory of a heroic statue of Theodore Thomas, first conductor of the festivals and formerly head of the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra.

Having respected the president's wish that he be treated as a "citizen of Cincinnati," all day, the public took full advantage of his appearance last night to acclaim him as the chief executive of the nation. A fanfare of trumpets ushered the president on the stage, but the notes of the instruments were drowned by the shouting applause of the thousands who had listened to the strains of Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus," with its story of love, liberty and justice.

A chorus of 800 voices, backed by an immense organ and the Chicago orchestra, sounded "O Liberty, Thou Chokest Treason, Seal of Virtue, Source of Pleasure" and was augmented by 300 boys' voices when the chorus, "See the Conquering Hero Comes" was reached. Mrs. Theodore

Thomas and her two sons occupied a box at last night's concert and heard the president's eulogy of the dead musician.

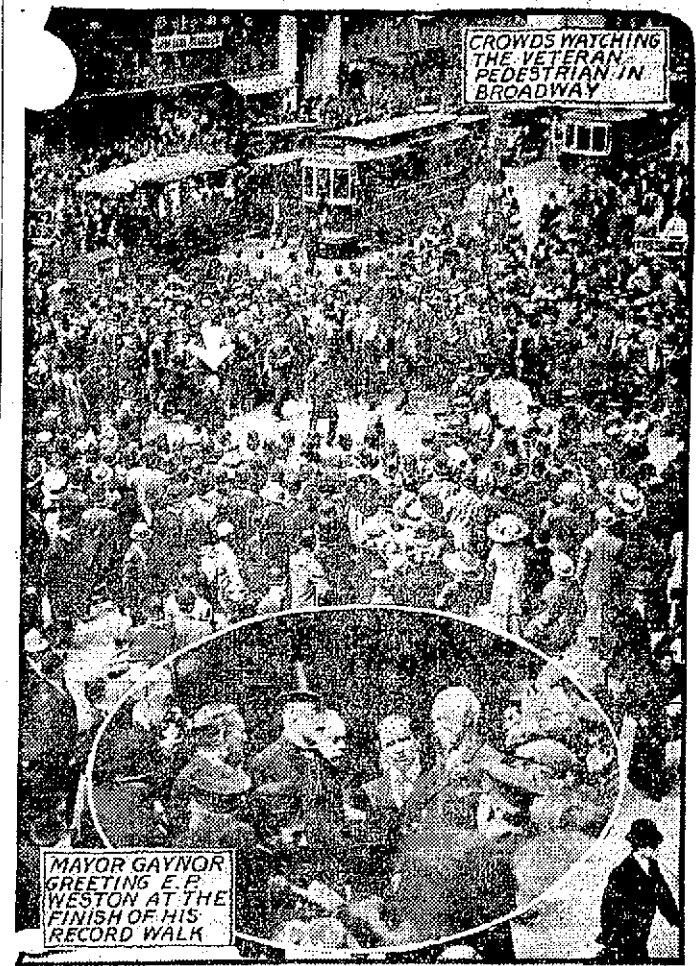

The statue of Thomas stands in the corner of the building. The draperies were removed at the conclusion of the president's speech and the departing audience viewed it.

After the concert the president went to the Queen City club, where Lawrence Maxwell, formerly solicitor general of the United States and now president of the May Festival association, was his host until the presidential party left for St. Louis shortly before midnight.

At the Loyal Legion meeting yesterday, President Taft, after declaring that he had been "too young to fight in the Civil war and too fat to take part in the Spanish war," said:

"It is a pleasure to come to one's home, especially when you have been in Washington and have been gently chided for your shortcomings, and to smuggle up close to those who are fond of you, who have respect for you whatever happens, and who believe that however great the obstacles are and however severe the criticism may be in other parts of the country you are doing the best you can."

THOUSANDS OF NEW YORKERS SAW END OF WESTON'S WALK

NEW YORK, May 4.—The finish of the record breaking walk of Edward P. Weston from the Pacific to the Atlantic was the scene of a remarkable demonstration on the part of New York crowds. Tens of thousands of people cheered the seventy-two-year-old walker as he marched down Broadway surrounded by mounted police.

His greeting by Mayor Gaynor on the steps of the city hall was witnessed by 20,000 people. While Weston declared he was in good condition at the conclusion of his long hike, his friends declare the strain was too much for the veteran and that he is far from being in good health.

TWO PATROLMEN ADELINE GENE

Were Called Before the Police Board Famous Dancer to Desert Stage

Two patrolmen appeared before the board of police at the regular meeting last night as a result of charges having been preferred against them. One of the men was charged with breach of discipline, while the other was summoned to appear before the board to give reason why he should not pay his debts.

By agreement between counsel and the board the hearing of the cases will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The following licenses were acted upon:

To sell ice cream, confectionery, soda water and fruit on the Lord's day—Aella Hebert, 265 Lincoln street; hawk and peddle, Morris Goldberg, 18 Daly street; Vasilios Coronis, 433 Market street; billiards and pool, Patrick McAndrews, 291 Chelmsford street; Antoni Sokolowski, 77 East Merrimack street.

Common victualler—Gregorios P. Tsigrakos, 503 1-2 Market street; Frank E. Putnam, 10 Merrimack street; D. L. Page Co., 34 Merrimack street; corner of Prescott and Merrimack streets and 434 Middlesex street; Karanopoulos Eliasopoulos, 433 Market street; Nicholas D. Spyropoulos, 462 Market street; Ernest Chambers, 383 Middlesex street; Peter Anastopoulos, 419 Market street.

Junk collector—John McHugh, 10 Emory street.

Job wagon—John H. McDonald, 25 Hildreth street, four licenses; John J. McSweeney, Billerica.

Hackney coach—Joseph Albert, 57 Cheever street, four licenses.

The following licenses were laid on the table:

Common victualler—Sil Zonnella, 412 Market street; John Vlahakos, 433 Market street; Soterios Lambros, 471 1/2 Market street; Nicholas Traffilis, 388 Suffolk street.

Billiards and pool—Nicholas Traffilis, 388 Suffolk street; John Vlahakos, 433 Market street; Soterios Lambros, 471 1/2 Market street.

On the application of W. Dane, representing the Altherthaw Construction Co. of Boston, Timothy Murphy and James Gaird were appointed special police officers, without pay from the city, for the property of the Massachusetts cotton mills and Boston & Maine R. R. on Canal street and vicinity.

MAY INCREASE FREIGHT RATES

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 4.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. will not follow the lead of other railroad corporations in filing with the interstate commerce commission a schedule of advances of freight rates. Later, however, it may consider an increase of freight rates upon small consignments and packages of freight on which, in the opinion of the company, the rates have hitherto been too low.

FOR PEOPLE WHO ITCH AND SCRATCH

Get a 10c box of Cadum, the new remedy, at any drug store, and apply a small quantity to any part of the skin which is affected and it will stop the itching at once. It is also good for pimples, rash, blotches, also where there is inflammation, chafing or itching. Inside of a day the trouble will be greatly relieved and often disappear completely. This test will prove better than words the remarkable virtues of this new compound. Cadum is likewise a safe and sure remedy for Eczema, Salt Rheum and other stubborn skin diseases of that nature. The itching stops at once when it is applied, and the healing process is immediately begun. Full-size boxes of Cadum, containing about four times as much as the 10c package, are sold for 25c.

LONDON, May 4.—Adeline Genée, the greatest dancer that ever visited America, is going to desert the stage for married life. June 11 the wonderful ful Danish dancer will be married to Frank N. S. Isitt. Royalty will be present at the wedding, and the Duke and Duchess of Newcastle will give a reception in her honor. Adeline Genée during her three visits to the United States danced her way into the hearts of thousands.

KNIGHTS OF MALTA

A representative body of the Lowell Commandery, Knights of Malta, went to Everett Monday night by special car to pay a fraternal visit to Gethsemane commandery of that city. The Lowell men were met by a delegation from the Everett commandery and headed by a drum corps marched to the Grand Army hall where a general good time was had.

Among the guests of the evening were Supreme Commander William M. Macomber, who spoke at length of the pleasant relations he had enjoyed with Lowell commandery as its deputy prior to his elevation to his present high office.

A banquet was served by Gethsemane sisterhood, Dames of Malta, after which there was a season of post-prandial and general sociability. Informal remarks were made by Deputy Grand Commander A. G. Robinson, Commandery Officer Herbert L. Elliott, Building Inspector James Dow, Assistant Superintendent of Streets George W. Bartwell, officers and past officers of Lowell and Gethsemane commanderies. The Lowell contingent left Everett at about midnight, calling Everett Knight Josiah Woods, William H. Saunders was chairman of the committee of arrangements.

AGED MILLIONAIRE DEAD

MINNEAPOLIS, May 4.—Levi Stewart, reputed to be the richest man in Minneapolis, died yesterday afternoon of old age and lung trouble. It is estimated that his realty holdings alone were worth upward of $5,000,000.

Mr. Stewart was born in Corvallis, Me., in 1826. His parents determined that he should become a minister, but the young man secured a position in a sawmill and made his living by working on fishing boats. He obtained enough money to pay for his tuition at Dartmouth and later obtained a position as a teacher in an eastern academy. He came to Minneapolis in 1866.

While in the academy, Mr. Stewart was very charitable in his own peculiar way. His foresight and early investments made him rich, yet he is said to have lived more simply than a common laborer. It was said that he spent less than $2 per week upon his food and clothing.

DIED SUDDENLY

EDWARD T. BARTLETT VICTIM OF HEART FAILURE

ALBANY, N. Y., May 4.—Edward Theodore Bartlett, of New York, associate judge of the court of appeals, died suddenly of heart failure last night at the Albany hospital.

Judge Bartlett had been a member of the court of appeals for 17 years. He was born June 14, 1841, at Skanectago, N. Y., where he will be buried Friday. His great grandfather was Joseph Bartlett, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and of the articles of the confederation and first governor and chief justice of New Hampshire. Judge Bartlett graduated from Union college.

WOMAN A SUICIDE

She Jumped In Front of a Train at Medford

MEDFORD, May 4.—A woman, 34 or 40 years of age, who came to Medford on a noon passenger train today from Boston, committed suicide half an hour later by jumping in front of a freight train on the Boston & Maine railroad. As soon as the woman arrived at the station she walked beside the tracks for about a mile when at the bridge over the boulevard a freight train from Boston came along and just as the locomotive reached her she stepped in front of it. She was dead when her mangled body was picked up.

The stranger was dressed in a blue waist and black skirt. She was five feet six inches tall and had light brown hair.

STEPS TAKEN

TO AVERT THE IMPENDING FREIGHT WAR

NEW YORK, May 4.—Another effort to avert the impending freight war due to differences between eastern railroads over the important differential to Chicago was made today when representatives of commercial bodies of Philadelphia, Boston and Baltimore met officials of various railroads at a conference of the officers of trunk line associations here.

After the failure of a similar conference held Thursday last to arrive at an agreement the Pennsylvania railroad announced that it would on June 1 cut the 50 cents import rate to Chicago to 51 cents, six cents lower than the present Boston rate. At the same time it was declared that the Philadelphia & Reading and the Baltimore & Ohio would join the Pennsylvania railroad.

Today's conference was held at the request of the Boston & Maine railroad, which refused to advance its rate from 55 to 70 cents a hundred pounds to equalize the change in comparison with the 65 cent rate from Philadelphia, which is 200 miles nearer Chicago than Boston.

WORKED TWELVE HOURS

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The report of the bureau of labor upon the conditions at the Bethlehem Steel works of South Bethlehem, Pa., which was submitted to the senate today, says that 2,322 men worked twelve hours a day for seven days a week, a large percentage of these laborers earning only 12 to 15 cents an hour.

THE JAPANESE PARTY

NEW YORK, May 4.—The party of Japanese business men who are making a tour of the United States on their way around the world reached here today on a Pullman river boat from New England and left shortly afterward for Washington. After his Washington trip the party will return to New York for a four day visit before sailing for Europe.

FIVE ON TRIAL

CHARGED WITH KIDNAPPING "INCUBATOR BABY"

HOLTON, Kas., May 4.—Five persons were brought to trial in the county court here today charged with complicity in the sensational kidnapping at Topeka in August last of Marion Bleakley, the "incubator baby" of the world's fair fame. The defendants are Mrs. Stella Barclay of Buffalo, N. Y., who once adopted the child and who is alleged to have planned the kidnapping; Joseph Gentry, a Kansas City detective; Frank H. Tiltonson, in whose employ Gentry was; Robert Randolph, who is said to have driven the motor car in making the escape with the child; and David Gregg of Topeka, alleged accomplice.

Marian Bleakley was recovered in Kansas City and after a sensational battle in the courts was restored to her mother.

CABLEGRAMS USED IN THE ALLEGED CUSTOMS FRAUD CASES

NEW YORK, May 4.—Several cablegrams from Paris to Frank Pawcett, now dead, who was a former inspector of customs and later so-called head of the alleged conspiracy to defraud the government out of duties by means of left-over baggage on steamship passengers, were put in evidence today at the trial of Philip A. Phillips and Mary Moore and Isabel Holland the two Boston dressmakers who were indicted for conspiracy to defraud the government in smuggling through sleeper baggage.

Another cablegram alleged to have been sent by Phillips to one Garcia on March 7, 1907, told Garcia who was the Paris end of the alleged conspiracy, to "destroy all papers; investigation," this cable was signed "Anderson," but the question who received the message testified that it was Phillips who handed it in at the cable office.

STRIKERS ARRESTED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 4.—Twenty-three Italians, part of a mob of 500 striking laborers, members of the building trades union who attacked employees at work on buildings in this city when they refused to leave their occupations, were arrested by the police today. Although many laborers were cut by knives and bruised by flying stones, no one was seriously injured. A warrant for the arrest of Felice D'Allesandro of Boston, the strike leader, who is alleged to have incited the disturbance, has been issued.

STEAMER IN COLLISION

BEVERLY, May 4.—The steamer Ligonier which was in collision with the steamer Santor of Cape Cod during a dense fog last night, arrived in the outer harbor this forenoon. The Ligonier will not come up the harbor to her dock until highwater, about 7 o'clock tonight.

TOLEDO, O., May 4.—At a meeting of the trustees of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution last night it was decided to hold the next convention at Louisville, Conn. The session closed with a banquet last night.

THE HEINZE CASE

NEW YORK, May 4.—The probing of books and records of various banks and trust companies by the government in a new effort to connect F. Augustus Heinze with the operation of the United Copperpools in 1907, begun late yesterday was continued before Judge Hough in the United States circuit court today when Heinze's trial was resumed. The accounts were those of Otto Heinze & Co., the various members of the firm, including Otto and Arthur P. Heinze, Max Schuitze and various subsidiary companies.

MANY PHYSICIANS

Summoned in Case at Superior Court Today

Mrs. Sadie Howard, Who Was in a Car Collision While En Route to "Baby Show" Last August, Sues the Boston & Northern for $20,000

The most formidable array of medical talent that has appeared in any case at this session of the superior court was present this morning in connection with the cases of Sadie E. Howard and Milton Howard vs. Boston & Northern street railway, to recover for personal injuries in the case of Mrs. Howard and loss of services, etc., in the husband's case.

The medical men present were Drs. Temple and Dugdale who are attending the plaintiff at the present time, and Drs. Meigs, Bell, Mahony, W. A. Johnson and Tabor. Christian Science was also mentioned in the case but had no representative in court.

It is alleged that in August, 1909, Mrs. Howard was on a car bound for Lakeview when the car in which she rode collided with another car.

Her counsel admits that she was in delicate health at the time of the accident and that her present condition is not entirely due to the accident but that her ailment has been greatly aggravated by the accident which would not have been a serious one to a person in good health. Mrs. Howard sues for $20,000 and her husband for $5000.

Many will recall the accident as having occurred on the day of the "Baby Show" at Lakeview. John J. O'Connor of Boston appears for the plaintiff and Messrs. Trull & Wier for the defendant. Mr. Howard is a traveling salesman for the John Filling Shoe company and the couple live on Wilder street.

Mrs. Howard appeared to be decidedly ill in court and walked with greatest difficulty. This morning at the request of counsel for the defense she had several physicians and Dr. Temple to a retiring room, where she was examined by Drs. Meigs and Bell as to her present physical condition. Court took a recess to accommodate the physicians.

Mrs. Howard related the circumstances of the accident, a rear-end collision in Lakeview avenue. Her sister-in-law, Miss Nellie Howard, who accompanied her, testified as to the accident.

Mrs. Howard testified also that her health was poor before the accident and that she was being treated by physicians and was improving under Dr. Temple's care when the accident occurred.

Milton Howard, the husband, testified that his wife had been in poor health prior to the accident and that he had been treated by several physicians and even tried Christian Science. "We gave them all a chance," he said.

Mrs. Davis, a friend of Mrs. Howard for 22 years and who worked with her in Lowell, in Boston, before Mrs. Howard's marriage, testified as to the great change in Mrs. Howard's physical condition since the accident.

Mrs. Laura A. Reynolds testified that she has been employed as an attendant upon Mrs. Howard for four months. Mrs. Howard, she said, suffered intense and constant pain, particularly at night, and she never rests at night resting in the morning or during the day. Mrs. Reynolds stated that Mrs. Howard's condition is falling rather than improving. Up to five months ago, she said, she had never seen Mrs. Howard and hence knew nothing of her health or physical condition prior to that time.

Dr. Franklin S. Temple was the first of the medical witnesses. He testified that he was a graduate of the Albany Medical college of Albany, N. Y. He testified that he first met Mrs. Howard in June, 1908, when she came to his office. He at first treated her for six months and then visited her at her home. He attended her during June, and Dr. Dugdale attended her while he was on his vacation. Witness said that he gave the patient vibratory treatment, a mechanical electric massage. It takes the place of the hand massage. It is claimed that it goes deeper than the hand massage.

While testifying Dr. Temple took a weak spell, but declined a chair. He recently underwent an operation, and stated that he was under the influence of a little cocaine. Mrs. Howard, he said, suffers from nervous and vomiting spells. Apparently she is suffering under his care. He found a medicine that temporarily controlled the vomiting. He then put her under a plain sulphur treatment and she improved sufficiently to get up and move around.

About Christmas he made a diagnosis of her case and found her suffering with locomotor ataxia, possibly of hereditary origin. Witness then, at Mr.

MAN NOT GUILTY

Of Having Assaulted His Wife

Emil Sargent, who resides in Moody street, was arraigned before Judge Hoadley in police court today on complaint of his wife, who said that he had assaulted her and also that he had failed to provide proper support for her. After hearing the testimony in the case, the court found the defendant not guilty of the charge of assault, but ordered him to contribute $5, instead of $3, weekly for her support.

Relative to the assault the defendant said that he and his wife and a friend were in the house the other night and when he returned with a pall of beer each was given a glass. His wife wanted a second glass, but he refused to allow her to have it, claiming that he knew it would start her tongue going. In a scuffle that followed between Sargent and his wife the can of beer was spilled and she slipped and fell on the floor. The court was inclined to believe the story offered by the defendant and found him not guilty on that charge.

Relative to the non-support charge, it was brought out during the testimony that Sargent and his wife, who are working in the mills in this city, have during the last four years saved several hundred dollars. It being shown that the man had a bank account of $900, while the wife had one of $800. Sargent said that he had been paying $3 a week towards the support of the house and $7 a month for rent. The court advised Sargent to pay $5 hereafter instead of $3.

6000 ON STRIKE

Men Are Looking for Strike Breakers

NEW YORK, May 4.—Pickets of striking bakers watched railroad stations and ferry houses closely today in an effort to intercept strike breakers from other cities. Many of the men sent here from out of town yesterday to take strikers places in the big bakeries involved in the labor trouble were said to have been persuaded not to go to work. Employers declared today, however, that they were fast getting all the men they needed and predicted that the strike would not last much longer.

The men on the other hand claim that their ranks are still unbroken and assert that conditions in the big plants are in reality just as bad as they have been for the past few days with upwards of 6000 men striking and the supply of bread for the big hotels, clubs and the general trade down to the famine point in many districts. Fresh bread and rolls are being supplied to some of the hotels from other cities.

WITNESS ILL

THE HEIKE CASE MAY BE HAMPERED

NEW YORK, May 4.—The illness of one of its chief witnesses may seriously hamper the government in its prosecution of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining Co., whose trial on sugar underweighting conspiracy charges is set for May 10. The supreme court in Washington yesterday threw out Heike's immunity plea and the long delayed trial was expected to begin next week. Today, however, there was manifest anxiety on the part of the prosecuting officials over reports of the condition of Richard Parr, the customs official who discovered the fraudulent device by which the government was deprived of duties on sugar imports and whose testimony was expected to play an important part in the trial of Heike and other men indicted with him in connection with the alleged sugar fraud conspiracy. Parr is threatened with appendicitis and an operation may be necessary.

FIGHT AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

BOSTON, May 4.—In order that the deaf and dumb church members of New England may be instructed on the dangers of tuberculosis the Evangelical alliance church for the deaf and inter-denominational body has arranged for sermons on the subject to be delivered to them. Rev. E. C. Wyand of Boston, who holds services for the deaf at the First United Presbyterian church, West Brookline street and Warren avenue, every Sunday, has already preached a sermon on the "white plague" to the deaf folks of Boston, Salem and Lawrence. The addresses were requested by the Boston Society of the Deaf.

FOR THE PRESERVATION OF YOUTH AND BEAUTY

Care of the teeth is a most important factor, for Nature is not always dependable, and irregular or impaired teeth can mar the most perfect face. Such a defect can always be redeemed and restore such teeth to their proper form and beauty. The methods used by Dr. Gagnon are such as are prescribed by the story of the modern dental practice. If you desire dental treatment you can safely entrust yourself to his experience, skill and scientific equipment.

RECENT RIOTING

Has Placed Chinese Government in Embarrassing Position

CHANGSHA, China, May 4.—The recent rioting in this province has placed the Chinese government in an embarrassing position regarding the proposed Hankow-Canton railroad loan. Evidence accumulates that the disturbance was deliberately planned by influential personages as a warning to the central authorities not to meddle in the affairs of Hu-Nan province and to make plain the determined opposition of the Hunanites to foreign participation in the railroad construction. Millions of Chinese are imbued with the idea that the government is yielding weakly to foreign influence which is seeking political control in China. Peking realizes the situation and while desiring to proceed with the railroad agreement understands that hasty action by the government might be followed with the most serious consequences. A protracted delay appears inevitable. Meantime the central authorities are trying to placate the Hunanites and have ordered the new governor to deal leniently with the rioters and also with the revolutionists who recently attempted the bomb outrage against the regent. The would-be assassins have not been put to death but have been sentenced to life imprisonment. The instigators of the rioting employed a large band of revolutionists who used the secrecy of riot as a pretext to stir up a popular and hostile demonstration. The destruction of property and the looting had been carefully planned. For a month before the outbreak the revolutionaries lived outside the south gate of the city where the rioting commenced. Members of the organized revolutionaries lived outside the south gate and directed the movements of the mob. Outwardly the situation in Changsha and the adjacent country appears to be improving. The United States gunboat Villalobos is expected here soon.

FIVE MEN ARRESTED

Charged With Attempting to Incite a Riot

BOSTON, May 4.—Five men were arrested by the Winchester police today charged with attempting to incite a riot. The men were armed with revolvers. The prisoners are leaders of a trolley excursion car who have been at work near the state parkway in that town. Police action today was brought about when the strikers assembled and signified their intention of marching to all the farms in and around Winchester in an effort to induce Italian farm laborers to quit work. Two arrests were made. Later the men gathered again and the police charged them and arrested three more leaders.

TWO MEN KILLED LEG FRACTURED

In a Wreck at Springfield, Ohio

SPRINGFIELD, O., May 4.—Two men were killed and several injured last night in a wreck on the Ohio electric railroad, near Urbana. W. H. Ferguson, the motorman, and H. Bourke of this city were killed when a trailing freight car broke away from a trolley excursion car and plunged down a steep grade into a passenger car.

TEACHERS' BANQUET

New Organization Gathers Around the Festive Board

Address Given by Dr. David Snedden, State Commissioner of Education—Supt. Whitcomb, Dr. Lamoreux and Sec. Warren P. Riordan—200 Teachers Attended Banquet

The recently organized Teachers' association of this city held its first banquet in Prescott hall last night with a party of 200 around the tables, members of the school board and the speakers of the occasion being the special guests.

The Teachers' organization was formed for purposes of co-operation along social and educational lines and its first event proved to be a complete success.

Miss Belle F. Bacheider, president of the organization, presided over the banquet. Rev. B. F. Willmott invoked the divine blessing. There were vocal solos by James E. Donnelly, Miss Josephine Coburn accompanist and selections by Richard's orchestra.

Supt. Whitcomb

Miss Bacheider introduced as the first speaker Supt. A. K. Whitcomb, his subject being "The Importance of Social Intercourse." He first congratulated the teachers on the success of the entertainment, and then spoke in part as follows:

Socrates, you may remember, once held a long discussion with his disciples on the question as to the comparative value of wealth, honor, fame, on one side, and of friends on the other.

He argued, and his disciples finally agreed unanimously, that money and popular favor give little solid enjoyment while they are retained, and that they are easily and often lost. Friends, on the other hand, are a constant joy, in retrospect and in prospect as well as in the present, and if they be real and true friends they can never be lost, not even by a change of worlds.

Every new friend broadens and enriches life. Money may become a burden and honors a weariness to the spirit. A new friend, on the other hand, never crowds out the old, and of true friends no one ever had too many.

"Now no teacher in the city of Lowell, so far as I can judge, has more than a very limited acquaintance with her sisters in her own profession.

"I, however, who know you all, wish to assure you, individually, that there are many among those whom you do not know who are exceedingly well worth knowing. My word for it, there are large numbers of you, now wholly unknown to each other, whose lives would be immeasurably enriched, who would be made happier as well as more useful by acquaintance and friendship.

"And this is why I especially rejoice in this meeting. I commend the public and professional spirit with which you planned it. I am delighted that it should succeed so well, and I hope it will be the beginning of many gatherings of this kind and of other kinds which will promote the social intercourse on which so much of your happiness and your usefulness depends."

Dr. Lamoreux

Dr. J. E. Lamoreux, chairman of the school board, spoke on "The Importance of Intellectual Growth." Mayor Mehen was unable to attend and in his place he sent his secretary, Warren P. Riordan, who addressed the company.

Dr. Snedden's Address

The address of the evening on "The Importance of Organization" was delivered by Dr. David Snedden, commissioner of education for Massachusetts. Dr. Snedden spoke in part as follows:

Dr. Snedden's Address

The final speaker was Dr. David Snedden, state commissioner of education for Massachusetts, and his subject was "The Importance of Organization." He said in part:

"I once heard the witty Bishop Montgomery, at a teachers' meeting in Los Angeles remark that it reminded him of the kingdom of heaven, because the women were in such vast majority. What is true of this gathering tonight is we know coming to be more or less true of the profession which we represent. The men are steadily—in some cases rapidly—disappearing from the American teaching profession. It is coming to be a woman's profession; perhaps apart from home-making, the most occupied and the greatest profession into which women are going.

"This is true not only in this country, but in England, and in France, also, the number of men is diminishing; and in Germany, several thousands of women have been introduced into places that heretofore have been supposed to be preoccupied by men.

"All sorts of reasons are assigned from time to time, as to why this great, fundamental change is taking place. At the bottom, the relative disappearance of men and the monopolization of the profession by women is largely concurrent with the rising standards in the teaching profession. I say this without any attempt to be derogative of the men who have followed the teaching profession as a career. The simple fact is that the American public has been engaged for a good many years in elevating the teaching profession on teachers. The teaching profession could be filled with men at $50 a month, if the standards were lowered enough to permit the employment of men of that stamp. Sixty years ago, men who were crippled or otherwise handicapped were given teaching positions very much as they are now given political positions, when they cannot do anything else.

"Of course every one who studies the educational situation, knows that things are improving. Salaries are going up—taking the country at large, and the character of those entering the work, in respect to professional training, is steadily improving. The consequence is that the type of person demanded cannot be procured among men, for the compensation offered. Therefore, teaching being woman's best profession, and only man's 20th, per se, the profession has come to be more and more a woman's profession. I am not here to complain of that situation of affairs, nor to minimize it. So far, we must confess ignorance. I am not here to suggest the consequences of the great change. Our guesses will take color from our prejudices. But it does seem to be the case that ultimately, education is to be in woman's hands. And in this connection I would suggest the very great importance of organization."

"Speaking generally, outside the kindergarten work, women have not figured conspicuously as leaders in the homogenous group is exceedingly valuable, and I am ready to predict that it is going to be a type of organization that will be seen in constantly increasing numbers. I am confident that in proportion as our standards of professional advancement must come from our own ranks. In many cities of Massachusetts the committee selects the text books that are used in the schools. There may come a time when the intelligent, sensible layman is a better judge of text books than the casual laborers who are employed as teachers; but if your work and mine reaches standards that are worth while, is it not evident that you and I should be more competent to choose the text books, than are the laymen?"

At this point the speaker was interrupted by applause, and he explained that if there was any local application in his reference, he was unconscious of the fact.

He then continued: "If the primary teachers of a community have not reached that state of educational and political attainment where they insist on saying what must be the tools that they will use in their work, then that speaks badly for the primary teachers, or for the community in which they are working."

"On the basis of the broader view, we must evolve from our own midst the standards that will convince those who employ us that we know what we are doing."

"By the organization of homogenous groups, nothing will become apparent sooner than that you have greatly multiplied your strength; and the temptation will come, to exploit the rest of the world. In this connection, the teacher must remember two things: First, that we are members not of a trade, but of a profession, and there are certain obligations attaching to a profession, that do not attach to a trade. The second is that they are members of a public, as opposed to a private service; and that as public servants they have certain obligations which to a large extent deprive them of certain opportunities for asserted action that may be entirely legitimate on the part of those who are members of a private service."

"While we are raising the standards, we must also preserve the democratic character of the profession. Any development of public education would be achieved at the expense of its democratic character, would be in the long run fatal to the evolution of that education."

In closing, Dr. Snedden complimented the teachers upon the character of the entertainment provided by the organization.

Notes on the question as to the comparative value of wealth, honor, fame, on one side, and of friends on the other. country, they constitute upwards of 80 per cent.

"It is a trite statement, but has to be reiterated again and again, that public education is evolving; that the demands made upon education—men and women—today, are steadily increasing. More and more, the work must rest upon scientifically demonstrated principles. More and more, it must be organized."

"We complain of the lowness of salaries, and they are low enough. But do we stop to realize that two-sevenths of all public revenues raised, go to pay your salaries and mine, speaking generally, for the United States; and if you take account of national expenditures, it is still true that one-seventh of all public revenue, national, state and local, goes to the support of that work that you and I are engaged in—public education. When we view the thing from that standpoint, the standpoint of the taxpayer, this becomes a formidable statement. The nagging public enterprises in which we are engaged, are engaged, is public education."

"The demands made upon teachers are increasing, and we have now reached the time when the laymen who figure upon our school boards of education are quite unable to follow the more scientific nature of the work in which we are engaged. The meaning and consequence of that, in this connection, is that we must evolve our own standards of professional success. We do not expect laymen to supervise hospitals, or the building of railroads, although, in the last analysis, the laymen must decide whether or not the demands of the public are being met."

"Those of us who have devoted our lives to the work of education must see to it that from year to year the standards improve."

"The very greatest thing in this connection, is the question whether or not those who are to take up, more and more, the teaching profession, are the people who will evolve, scientific standards, and who will enter into and support the progressive evolution of this work. It is absolutely necessary that this should be done in a cooperative, organized capacity. I am not here to suggest the consequences of the great change. Our guesses will take color from our prejudices. But it does seem to be the case that ultimately, education is to be in woman's hands. And in this connection I would suggest the very great importance of organization."

Notes on the question as to the comparative value of wealth, honor, fame, on one side, and of friends on the other. He argued, and his disciples finally agreed unanimously, that money and popular favor give little solid enjoyment while they are retained, and that they are easily and often lost. Friends, on the other hand, are a constant joy, in retrospect and in prospect as well as in the present, and if they be real and true friends they can never be lost, not even by a change of worlds.

Every new friend broadens and enriches life. Money may become a burden and honors a weariness to the spirit. A new friend, on the other hand, never crowds out the old, and of true friends no one ever had too many.

"Now no teacher in the city of Lowell, so far as I can judge, has more than a very limited acquaintance with her sisters in her own profession.

"I, however, who know you all, wish to assure you, individually, that there are many among those whom you do not know who are exceedingly well worth knowing. My word for it, there are large numbers of you, now wholly unknown to each other, whose lives would be immeasurably enriched, who would be made happier as well as more useful by acquaintance and friendship.

"And this is why I especially rejoice in this meeting. I commend the public and professional spirit with which you planned it. I am delighted that it should succeed so well, and I hope it will be the beginning of many gatherings of this kind and of other kinds which will promote the social intercourse on which so much of your happiness and your usefulness depends."

Dr. Snedden's Address

The address of the evening on "The Importance of Organization" was delivered by Dr. David Snedden, commissioner of education for Massachusetts. Dr. Snedden spoke in part as follows:

Dr. Snedden's Address

The final speaker was Dr. David Snedden, state commissioner of education for Massachusetts, and his subject was "The Importance of Organization." He said in part:

"I once heard the witty Bishop Montgomery, at a teachers' meeting in Los Angeles remark that it reminded him of the kingdom of heaven, because the women were in such vast majority. What is true of this gathering tonight is we know coming to be more or less true of the profession which we represent. The men are steadily—in some cases rapidly—disappearing from the American teaching profession. It is coming to be a woman's profession; perhaps apart from home-making, the most occupied and the greatest profession into which women are going.

"This is true not only in this country, but in England, and in France, also, the number of men is diminishing; and in Germany, several thousands of women have been introduced into places that heretofore have been supposed to be preoccupied by men.

"All sorts of reasons are assigned from time to time, as to why this great, fundamental change is taking place. At the bottom, the relative disappearance of men and the monopolization of the profession by women is largely concurrent with the rising standards in the teaching profession. I say this without any attempt to be derogative of the men who have followed the teaching profession as a career. The simple fact is that the American public has been engaged for a good many years in elevating the teaching profession on teachers. The teaching profession could be filled with men at $50 a month, if the standards were lowered enough to permit the employment of men of that stamp. Sixty years ago, men who were crippled or otherwise handicapped were given teaching positions very much as they are now given political positions, when they cannot do anything else.

country, they constitute upwards of 80 per cent.

"It is a trite statement, but has to be reiterated again and again, that public education is evolving; that the demands made upon education—men and women—today, are steadily increasing. More and more, the work must rest upon scientifically demonstrated principles. More and more, it must be organized."

"We complain of the lowness of salaries, and they are low enough. But do we stop to realize that two-sevenths of all public revenues raised, go to pay your salaries and mine, speaking generally, for the United States; and if you take account of national expenditures, it is still true that one-seventh of all public revenue, national, state and local, goes to the support of that work that you and I are engaged in—public education. When we view the thing from that standpoint, the standpoint of the taxpayer, this becomes a formidable statement. The nagging public enterprises in which we are engaged, are engaged, is public education."

"The demands made upon teachers are increasing, and we have now reached the time when the laymen who figure upon our school boards of education are quite unable to follow the more scientific nature of the work in which we are engaged. The meaning and consequence of that, in this connection, is that we must evolve our own standards of professional success. We do not expect laymen to supervise hospitals, or the building of railroads, although, in the last analysis, the laymen must decide whether or not the demands of the public are being met."

"Those of us who have devoted our lives to the work of education must see to it that from year to year the standards improve."

"The very greatest thing in this connection, is the question whether or not those who are to take up, more and more, the teaching profession, are the people who will evolve, scientific standards, and who will enter into and support the progressive evolution of this work. It is absolutely necessary that this should be done in a cooperative, organized capacity. I am not here to suggest the consequences of the great change. Our guesses will take color from our prejudices. But it does seem to be the case that ultimately, education is to be in woman's hands. And in this connection I would suggest the very great importance of organization."

"Speaking generally, outside the kindergarten work, women have not figured conspicuously as leaders in the homogenous group is exceedingly valuable, and I am ready to predict that it is going to be a type of organization that will be seen in constantly increasing numbers. I am confident that in proportion as our standards of professional advancement must come from our own ranks. In many cities of Massachusetts the committee selects the text books that are used in the schools. There may come a time when the intelligent, sensible layman is a better judge of text books than the casual laborers who are employed as teachers; but if your work and mine reaches standards that are worth while, is it not evident that you and I should be more competent to choose the text books, than are the laymen?"

At this point the speaker was interrupted by applause, and he explained that if there was any local application in his reference, he was unconscious of the fact.

He then continued: "If the primary teachers of a community have not reached that state of educational and political attainment where they insist on saying what must be the tools that they will use in their work, then that speaks badly for the primary teachers, or for the community in which they are working."

"On the basis of the broader view, we must evolve from our own midst the standards that will convince those who employ us that we know what we are doing."

"By the organization of homogenous groups, nothing will become apparent sooner than that you have greatly multiplied your strength; and the temptation will come, to exploit the rest of the world. In this connection, the teacher must remember two things: First, that we are members not of a trade, but of a profession, and there are certain obligations attaching to a profession, that do not attach to a trade. The second is that they are members of a public, as opposed to a private service; and that as public servants they have certain obligations which to a large extent deprive them of certain opportunities for asserted action that may be entirely legitimate on the part of those who are members of a private service."

"While we are raising the standards, we must also preserve the democratic character of the profession. Any development of public education would be achieved at the expense of its democratic character, would be in the long run fatal to the evolution of that education."

In closing, Dr. Snedden complimented the teachers upon the character of the entertainment provided by the organization.

He argued, and his disciples finally agreed unanimously, that money and popular favor give little solid enjoyment while they are retained, and that they are easily and often lost. TWENTY FIVE YEARS

Of Activity by Lowell Cooperative Bank Celebrated by Banquet

The Lowell Co-operative bank celebrated the 25th anniversary of its organization last night at the banking rooms on the top floor of the Central block with a banquet. That the bank has been a success from the start and that each succeeding year has found it on a firmer basis than the previous years is a well known fact, and during the course of the addresses last night a history of the institution was given.

The feature of the occasion was the presentation of a beautiful loving cup to Artemas B. Woodworth, who has been president of the bank since it was organized.

There were about 36 who gathered around the festive board and besides the excellent menu served by the D. L. Page Co., music was furnished by a Victor phonograph under the direction of John H. Colwell of M. Steinert & Sons Co.

After the menu had been discussed, Francis H. Appleton introduced Artemas B. Woodworth, the man who is the first and present president of the Lowell Co-operative bank.

Mr. Woodworth was greeted with applause as he arose to speak. He referred to his 25 years service as president of the bank. He told of the inception of the bank and spoke in a reminiscent manner of the early years of its institution. He claimed that the Co-operative bank had justified itself by its help to the home builder of the American nation.

The next speaker was Daniel Eldredge of Boston. He was introduced as the dean of co-operative bankers in Massachusetts. After a few humorous remarks aimed at W. D. Brown, the speaker told of the struggle to get the legislature to pass the bill permitting the establishment of the cooperative banks. This was in April 33 years ago. Considering the great growth of such banks in this state, he said he felt justly proud of his part in it.

History of the Bank

Secretary William D. Brown then gave an interesting history of the Lowell Co-operative bank, in part as follows:

"The first suggestion regarding a co-operative bank in Lowell was undoubtedly made by Mr. Stephen R.

Kitchen, who has been vice president of our bank for the entire 25 years of its history.

The Lowell Co-operative bank was organized April 23, 1885, and commenced business May 14, 1885, with an authorized capital of $1,000,000.

"The officers elected at that time were: President, Artemas B. Woodworth; vice president, Stephen R. Kitchen; secretary, George W. Batchelder; treasurer, George E. Metcalf; directors, John Dobson, Thomas Collins, Albert N. Wheeler, James E. White, James D. Hartwell, Joseph M. Wilson, Joseph L. Sedgley, Enoch O. Kingsley, Charles T. Rowland, George W. Brothers, Edwin S. Bickford, Robert Simpson, William A. Wright, James Murkland and E. Garfield Baker.

Of this number five have died, viz.: William A. Wright, John Dobson, Albert N. Wheeler, James E. White and Enoch O. Kingsley.

"In the 25 years of its history the Lowell Co-operative bank has been regularly and steadily successful in the purposes for which it was organized. It has done much in the way of teaching the people how to save their money systematically and wisely. It has inculcated in the hearts of many a desire to own their own homes, and it has been of untold value in assisting them to accomplish this object.

"Starting with comparatively few shareholders and small assets, in the year 1880 the assets had reached $131,157.20. Five years later (in 1885) they had risen to $220,820.41; in 1900 to $320,510.25; in 1905 to $437,542.61; and at the close of the 25th year the Lowell Co-operative bank's assets are $748,746.38.

"It is with great satisfaction that I call attention to the fact that this bank has helped more than 100 shareholders in the buying, building or paying for their homes. The total number of loans on real estate has been 1122, and the amount of money loaned in the 25 years on real estate is $1,609,315. The total amount loaned on shares (without real estate security) in the 25 years has been $247,734.

"At the present time the number of shareholders is 2017. Number of borrowers 442. Number of non-borrowers 1575.

"Of course, the bank has met with some losses, through failure of shareholders to meet their obligations, and it has in some instances been obliged to foreclose upon and sell properties. But it has always been in such condition that it could easily meet all these difficulties, and it has never been obliged to reduce its yearly dividend below the rate of 4% per cent. At the time of the explosion at Riverside park where several people were killed and a large number of homes were destroyed or damaged, there was some anxiety for a time, as the bank had no fewer than 27 loans on property in that vicinity, but the crisis was passed safely, and the bank's losses did not exceed a total of $500 on all this property.

"The bank has included among its shareholders all classes of people—laborers, mechanics, artisans, physicians, lawyers, clergymen, national bank officers and employees, savings banks' treasurers and clerks—thus showing the widespread confidence in which the co-operative bank system is held. Nearly all the nationalities in our cosmopolitan city of Lowell are represented among our 2017 shareholders.

"It is with great satisfaction which I know will be shared by every one present, that I refer to the fact that the man who was chosen president of this bank in April, 1885, holds that position to the present day. The value of the service that has been rendered by Mr. Artemas B. Woodworth cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. Serving entirely without remuneration, he has been a labor of love, and to him is due a large share of the credit for the high position which the bank holds in this community today.

"George W. Batchelder, Esq., who was secretary and treasurer of the bank for years, holding that position until he felt obliged to lay down the burden because of advancing years, also rendered the bank faithful and honest service which contributed greatly to its success.

"Besides President Woodworth and Vice President Kitchen, four of the original board of directors, Messrs. Thomas Collins, George W. Brothers, Edwin S. Bickford and James Murkland have continued on the board and have freely given their time and judgment to the prosperity of the bank. Mr. Brothers presented his resignation only last week. We regret to lose him from the board.

"The officers of the bank at the present time are: President, Artemas B. Woodworth; vice president, Stephen R. Kitchen; secretary and treasurer, William D. Brown. Directors, Artemas B. Woodworth, Stephen R. Kitchen, George W. Brothers, Edwin S. Bickford, Thomas Collins, James Murkland, Caleb L. Smith, John O. Gullins, Francis E. Appleton, George H. Taylor, William D. Brown, Oliver H. P. Green, Geo. C. Osgood, John Kerr, Warren F. Sanborn, Southwell Farrington and William H. Penn; attorneys, Stanley R. Quin, Esq., auditors, Loring R. Paulant, Herbert L. Bishop, Samuel A. Granthead.

"Gentlemen, I have no eloquent peroration with which to close this rather fragmentary and incomplete history. We have been considering a very practical subject, and from that fact there is no need of rhetorical embellishment in stating what has been done. Doubtless when the bank started there were some who had doubts about its success, because its directors and managers were not men of great experience in financial matters. But they have certainly been conservative, honest and economical, and the result is known.

Another good feature about our bank I might mention before closing is that it contributes to the welfare of the people of Lowell by loaning its money all in this immediate vicinity. We have very few loans on property located outside a four mile radius of the city and all the shares we care to sell and as a rule have readily loaned all our money at good rates of interest. It is with no little satisfaction that we refer again to the homes that our books show have been paid for through the medium of this bank and we rejoice in the motto that has been adopted by the cooperative banks of the country and to the real meaning of which they are contributing so much that is practical and durable, "The American Home, the Safeguard of American Liberty."

It was at this point that one of the most interesting events of the evening occurred. J. Warren Bailey, president of the State Co-operative Bank league, arose, and after making interesting remarks relative to the local bank, presented President Woodworth with a handsome loving cup and cut glass dial, given he said as a mark of appreciation from his associates in the management of the bank.

Mr. Woodworth, though taken wholly by surprise, responded in a brief and appropriate manner.

The cup is inscribed "Artemas B. Woodworth, from the directors of the Lowell Co-operative Bank, May 3, 1910."

Congratulatory speeches were given by Fisher H. Pearson and W. M. Sherwell of the other co-operative banks in the city.

The invited guests included men who have been prominent in co-operative bank affairs in the state and city. They were Daniel Eldredge of Boston, "the pioneer" of co-operative bankers; J. Warren Bailey of Boston, president of the West Southerly Co-operative bank; and William M. Sherwell, president of the Middlesex Co-operative bank, and Fisher H. Pearson, president of the D. F. Butler Co-operative bank of Lowell.

Letters were read from Bank Commissioner Arthur B. Chapin, ex-Gov. John Q. A. Brackett and Austin K. Chadwick of the Five Cent Savings bank of Lowell.

MR. WILLIAM D. BROWN
Secretary

year 1880 the assets had reached $131,157.20. Five years later (in 1885) they had risen to $220,820.41; in 1900 to $320,510.25; in 1905 to $437,542.61; and at the close of the 25th year the Lowell Co-operative bank's assets are $748,746.38.

"It is with great satisfaction that I call attention to the fact that this bank has helped more than 100 shareholders in the buying, building or paying for their homes. The total number of loans on real estate has been 1122, and the amount of money loaned in the 25 years on real estate is $1,609,315. The total amount loaned on shares (without real estate security) in the 25 years has been $247,734.

"At the present time the number of shareholders is 2017. Number of borrowers 442. Number of non-borrowers 1575.

"Of course, the bank has met with some losses, through failure of shareholders to meet their obligations, and it has in some instances been obliged to foreclose upon and sell properties. But it has always been in such condition that it could easily meet all these difficulties, and it has never been obliged to reduce its yearly dividend below the rate of 4% per cent. At the time of the explosion at Riverside park where several people were killed and a large number of homes were destroyed or damaged, there was some anxiety for a time, as the bank had no fewer than 27 loans on property in that vicinity, but the crisis was passed safely, and the bank's losses did not exceed a total of $500 on all this property.

"The bank has included among its shareholders all classes of people—laborers, mechanics, artisans, physicians, lawyers, clergymen, national bank officers and employees, savings banks' treasurers and clerks—thus showing the widespread confidence in which the co-operative bank system is held. Nearly all the nationalities in our cosmopolitan city of Lowell are represented among our 2017 shareholders.

"It is with great satisfaction which I know will be shared by every one present, that I refer to the fact that the man who was chosen president of this bank in April, 1885, holds that position to the present day. The value of the service that has been rendered by Mr. Artemas B. Woodworth cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. Serving entirely without remuneration, he has been a labor of love, and to him is due a large share of the credit for the high position which the bank holds in this community today.

"George W. Batchelder, Esq., who was secretary and treasurer of the bank for years, holding that position until he felt obliged to lay down the burden because of advancing years, also rendered the bank faithful and honest service which contributed greatly to its success.

"Besides President Woodworth and Vice President Kitchen, four of the original board of directors, Messrs. Thomas Collins, George W. Brothers, Edwin S. Bickford and James Murkland have continued on the board and have freely given their time and judgment to the prosperity of the bank. Mr. Brothers presented his resignation only last week. We regret to lose him from the board.

"The officers of the bank at the present time are: President, Artemas B. Woodworth; vice president, Stephen R. Kitchen; secretary and treasurer, William D. Brown. Directors, Artemas B. Woodworth, Stephen R. Kitchen, George W. Brothers, Edwin S. Bickford, Thomas Collins, James Murkland, Caleb L. Smith, John O. Gullins, Francis E. Appleton, George H. Taylor, William D. Brown, Oliver H. P. Green, Geo. C. Osgood, John Kerr, Warren F. Sanborn, Southwell Farrington and William H. Penn; attorneys, Stanley R. Quin, Esq., auditors, Loring R. Paulant, Herbert L. Bishop, Samuel A. Granthead.

"Gentlemen, I have no eloquent peroration with which to close this rather fragmentary and incomplete history. We have been considering a very practical subject, and from that fact there is no need of rhetorical embellishment in stating what has been done. Doubtless when the bank started there were some who had doubts about its success, because its directors and managers were not men of great experience in financial matters. But they have certainly been conservative, honest and economical, and the result is known.

Another good feature about our bank I might mention before closing is that it contributes to the welfare of the people of Lowell by loaning its money all in this immediate vicinity. We have very few loans on property located outside a four mile radius of the city and all the shares we care to sell and as a rule have readily loaned all our money at good rates of interest. It is with no little satisfaction that we refer again to the homes that our books show have been paid for through the medium of this bank and we rejoice in the motto that has been adopted by the cooperative banks of the country and to the real meaning of which they are contributing so much that is practical and durable, "The American Home, the Safeguard of American Liberty."

It was at this point that one of the most interesting events of the evening occurred. J. Warren Bailey, president of the State Co-operative Bank league, arose, and after making interesting remarks relative to the local bank, presented President Woodworth with a handsome loving cup and cut glass dial, given he said as a mark of appreciation from his associates in the management of the bank.

Mr. Woodworth, though taken wholly by surprise, responded in a brief and appropriate manner.

The cup is inscribed "Artemas B. Woodworth, from the directors of the Lowell Co-operative Bank, May 3, 1910."

Congratulatory speeches were given by Fisher H. Pearson and W. M. Sherwell of the other co-operative banks in the city.

The invited guests included men who have been prominent in co-operative bank affairs in the state and city. They were Daniel Eldredge of Boston, "the pioneer" of co-operative bankers; J. Warren Bailey of Boston, president of the West Southerly Co-operative bank; and William M. Sherwell, president of the Middlesex Co-operative bank, and Fisher H. Pearson, president of the D. F. Butler Co-operative bank of Lowell.

Letters were read from Bank Commissioner Arthur B. Chapin, ex-Gov. John Q. A. Brackett and Austin K. Chadwick of the Five Cent Savings bank of Lowell.

THE INCOME TAX

Was a Subject of Debate in the Legislature

BOSTON, May 4.—The house yesterday spent nearly all day, after running through the calendar, in debating the income tax amendment to the federal constitution. The question came on the motion by Mr. Riley of Malden to substitute his resolve favoring the amendment for an adverse report of the committee on federal relations.

Those who spoke for the bill yesterday were Riley and Dean, democrats. Charles R. Brown of Medford, chairman of the committee on federal relations, led the fight against the Riley resolve. He was assisted by Dean of Woburn, republican.

At the time of adjournment Mr. Dean was talking. Debate was resumed at the morning session of the house today.

Rep. Riley spoke for 45 minutes, declaring that the question is the most important coming before the legislature in a generation.

He declared that up to 1895 congress had the power to levy an income tax, and exercised it for years, but in that year it was wiped out by a court decision, leaving this the only nation in the civilized world without that power.

He said the chief argument thus far advanced against the proposition is that Massachusetts would pay in such a tax more than she would receive, and that she should keep the tax for herself. Answering the argument, he said the function of government is to protect property, and if Massachusetts has more property to protect it should be willing to pay more for the protection, because it costs more.

He described at length the message written by Gov. Huxford against the law, and pointed out that the governor dealt with only one phase of the matter, which is a minor one.

Brown in Opposition

Mr. Brown of Medford, opposing the income tax, said it may be true that the rich as a class are not bearing their just share of the country's burden, but the suggestion does not contain the remedy, because, in his opinion, such a tax would only add to the burden of the poorer class.

Stripped of its political aspects and considered only on its merits, he believed there would be little agitation for the bill, and charged that its passage by congress was only a concession of the western states in return for votes for the tariff bill.

He showed that Massachusetts' contribution to such a tax would be entirely out of proportion to her representation in congress, the logical result being that Massachusetts money will be used for extravagant expenditures in other states.

He said his committee favors the principle of an income tax, but believes it should be conserved to the uses of this commonwealth.

Mr. Dean of Woburn pointed out that congress now has the right to levy an income tax provided it is distributed among the states according to population, but so long as states having but one-sixth of the population have a majority of the national senate, Massachusetts should oppose any attempt to take her wealth for the benefit of others.

Mr. Dean of Wakefield favored the tax and declared that had the government not had the power to levy it at the time of the Civil war there might have been a different story to tell of that war.

Labor Bills Put Over

In the senate yesterday all of the labor bills were again postponed for various reasons.

On motion of Senator Teeling of Boston, the "Tinkham" "peaceful picketing" bill was postponed till today because Senator Russ of New Bedford was absent; on motion of Senator Mahoney the "eight hour" bill was put over till today because Senator Tully was absent; on motion of Senator Mulligan the "seamen's union" bill went over till today owing to the absence of the same senator.

The Canning K. of L. eight hour bill had to be postponed also and the "trade union fines" bill was put over, too.

Senator White of "the Cape" asked unanimous consent to change the postponement of the Cape Cod canal bill from Monday next till tomorrow. Senator Mahoney objected and the motion failed.

Reject Milk Bill

The senate rejected the "pasteurized milk" bill after Senator Mellen of Brookfield had made a statement in reply to Senator Parker of Boston that the committee on agriculture unani-ously reported it and the dairy bureau wanted it.

Senator Mahoney said: "This is a case where general welfare isn't at all interested in this bill; it is just one individual."

The bill was killed by practically a unanimous voice vote.

Won't Investigate Merrimack

The committee on public health reported to the house on petition of Arthur L. Nason that the state board of health be given authority and control of the sanitary condition of the Merrimack.

THE AUTO LAW

Is to be Enforced in Nashua

NASHUA, N. H., May 4.—The Nashua board of trade took up at length yesterday the violation of the speed regulations by automobiles in this city and ended by passing a resolution urging a strict enforcement of the law.

The matter was first broached by George Sylvester, through whom several others appeared and spoke on the question. Mr. Sylvester is an automobile owner and it is said that the request for the enforcement of the speed laws emanates from a Nashua automobile club which is now in the process of organization.

Mr. Sylvester was followed by Edward H. Watson, Lester K. Thurber and other automobile owners, ex-Mayor William H. Beason, W. L. Carter and Rev. William Porter Miles, all appealing for the enforcement of the law relative to speeding and lights on automobiles. Mr. Watson alleged that members of the police force were ignorant of the laws governing the lighting of lamps, the carrying of licenses and such things. The principal complaint was against tourists going from Boston to the mountains.

Dr. A. E. Brownrigg, the owner of a car, which, it is claimed, will do better than 60 miles an hour, was the only one who spoke in defense of automobiles. He declared that under the 15-mile speed a car could be better controlled than at 10 miles an hour. He also claimed that the new state roads were not being torn up by automobiles as stated, but by heavy raining.

The special committee, consisting of W. H. Beason, W. L. Carter and James H. Tolles, which with others conferred with President Tuttle regarding freight delays on the Boston & Maine railroad, made its report. This report developed an interesting fact in the announcement that Mr. Carter in shipping the consignments of goods on one day from this city, one to Haverhill, Mass., 36 miles away, and the other to Liverpool, Eng., had received notice that the Liverpool consignment had arrived at its destination a day before the Haverhill shipment.

JOSEPH JOHNSON

RETIRE FROM THE PARK DEPARTMENT

Mr. Joseph H. Johnson, a popular and efficient employee of the parks and commons for the past ten years severed his connection with the department on Saturday last to assume the duties of police officer to which position he was appointed as supernumerary a few weeks ago. During his service in the park department he made many friends and being thoroughly familiar with all branches of the work he will be greatly missed by the superintendent, Charles A. Whitet, to whom he has been a faithful employee. His many friends throughout the city wish him success in his new field of labor.

PRIZE OF $10,000

ATLANTA, Ga., May 4.—Charles K. Hamilton, in his Curtiss biplane, flew yesterday from the Atlanta speedway to the town of Jonesboro and return, a distance of about 15 miles in a little over 18 minutes. Hamilton announced that when he returns to the east he will try for a $10,000 prize offered by a New York paper for a flight from New York to Albany.

A QUIET MARRIAGE

LINCOLN, Neb., May 4.—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt, eldest daughter of William J. Bryan was quietly married yesterday to Lieutenant Reginald A. Owen of the Royal engineer corps of the British army, stationed in Jamaica. Only members of the family witnessed the ceremony.

The nuptials were decorated with palms, Easter lilies and lilacs of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Owen left for Jamaica, the route not being definitely determined in advance.

The bridegroom is 26 years of age. He is the son of T. C. Owen, a business man of London. His mother is not living. Mr. Owen took the military branch of the British government service at Jamaica, and according to the government rules, will not be recalled to the mother country until after completing a term of three years.

Ruth Bryan was first married nearly seven years ago, when 15 years of age to William Homer Leavitt, an artist nearly twice her age. She got a divorce from Leavitt in March, 1909, with absolute custody of their two children. The children are now in Germany.

VOTE TO STRIKE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 4.—The polling of the telegraphers of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. on the question of striking because the road has refused to grant an increase of wages, was completed last night. The vote was not officially counted, owing to the non-arrival of an official of the union, but it is understood that 88 per cent of the voters were in favor of such a course. It is also understood that the New Haven company will make a stand in the case of the telegraphers and will not grant their demands.

BOATS COLLIDED

Accident Occurred Off Cape Cod

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 4.—A rumor reached here early today that two steamers had been in collision somewhere off Cape Cod and that passengers of one vessel were being taken off by the other boat. Word was sent out by wireless to intercept the wrecking tug Tascos, half way between Providence and New London, to turn back and give assistance. The name of one of the steamers was mentioned as the Santurce a freight steamer which left Boston for New York yesterday.

Word of this collision reached here through Captain Scott of the Scott Wrecking Co. at New London, Conn. He said he had received word to send out one of his vessels, the Tascos, to give assistance to two steamers which had been in collision. As the Tascos was at sea, an attempt was made to reach her through the Point Judith wireless station. Interference with wireless communication had been very pronounced all night.

Captain Scott did not tell where the message came from in the first place. As an instance of the trouble the wireless operators were having last night the naval wireless station at Newport was unable for some time to get into communication with the nearest wireless neighbor at Point Judith. At first it was thought that the rumor was a "wireless fake" but the names of the Santurce and the Tascos are not familiar to even the keenest of amateurs.

VETERAN FIREMEN

DID NOT SELECT DATE FOR ANNUAL MUSTER

BOSTON, May 4.—The selection of the date and place for the annual muster of the New England Firemen's league, usually the chief business of the May meeting, was not decided yesterday at the session held in the Paine Memorial building.

A committee of three was appointed from the floor after a spirited discussion lasting nearly two hours, to name the day and location. The committee is made up of Capt. John H. Barber of Central Falls, R. I., Capt. H. H. Wilcox of Taunton and M. P. Cavanaugh of Roxbury.

A representative of the Fall River association declared that his organization had pledged from the business men of that city for $2500. During the discussion Fall River appeared to be the favorite location.

The Indian Orchard association withdrew its application without a vote from the league. No action was taken on the application of the Boston association for withdrawal from the league.

A QUIET MARRIAGE

LINCOLN, Neb., May 4.—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt, eldest daughter of William J. Bryan was quietly married yesterday to Lieutenant Reginald A. Owen of the Royal engineer corps of the British army, stationed in Jamaica. Only members of the family witnessed the ceremony.

The nuptials were decorated with palms, Easter lilies and lilacs of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Owen left for Jamaica, the route not being definitely determined in advance.

The bridegroom is 26 years of age. He is the son of T. C. Owen, a business man of London. His mother is not living. Mr. Owen took the military branch of the British government service at Jamaica, and according to the government rules, will not be recalled to the mother country until after completing a term of three years.

Ruth Bryan was first married nearly seven years ago, when 15 years of age to William Homer Leavitt, an artist nearly twice her age. She got a divorce from Leavitt in March, 1909, with absolute custody of their two children. The children are now in Germany.

VOTE TO STRIKE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 4.—The polling of the telegraphers of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. on the question of striking because the road has refused to grant an increase of wages, was completed last night. The vote was not officially counted, owing to the non-arrival of an official of the union, but it is understood that 88 per cent of the voters were in favor of such a course. It is also understood that the New Haven company will make a stand in the case of the telegraphers and will not grant their demands.

CARD OF THANKS

The undersigned wish to express their heartfelt thanks to the many friends who so generously lent their assistance in their recent bereavement, also to those who sent floral offerings. W. A. Hornby and family.

THE AUTO LAW

Is to be Enforced in Nashua

NASHUA, N. H., May 4.—The Nashua board of trade took up at length yesterday the violation of the speed regulations by automobiles in this city and ended by passing a resolution urging a strict enforcement of the law.

The matter was first broached by George Sylvester, through whom several others appeared and spoke on the question. Mr. Sylvester is an automobile owner and it is said that the request for the enforcement of the speed laws emanates from a Nashua automobile club which is now in the process of organization.

Mr. Sylvester was followed by Edward H. Watson, Lester K. Thurber and other automobile owners, ex-Mayor William H. Beason, W. L. Carter and Rev. William Porter Miles, all appealing for the enforcement of the law relative to speeding and lights on automobiles. Mr. Watson alleged that members of the police force were ignorant of the laws governing the lighting of lamps, the carrying of licenses and such things. The principal complaint was against tourists going from Boston to the mountains.

Dr. A. E. Brownrigg, the owner of a car, which, it is claimed, will do better than 60 miles an hour, was the only one who spoke in defense of automobiles. He declared that under the 15-mile speed a car could be better controlled than at 10 miles an hour. He also claimed that the new state roads were not being torn up by automobiles as stated, but by heavy raining.

The special committee, consisting of W. H. Beason, W. L. Carter and James H. Tolles, which with others conferred with President Tuttle regarding freight delays on the Boston & Maine railroad, made its report. This report developed an interesting fact in the announcement that Mr. Carter in shipping the consignments of goods on one day from this city, one to Haverhill, Mass., 36 miles away, and the other to Liverpool, Eng., had received notice that the Liverpool consignment had arrived at its destination a day before the Haverhill shipment.

JOSEPH JOHNSON

RETIRE FROM THE PARK DEPARTMENT

Mr. Joseph H. Johnson, a popular and efficient employee of the parks and commons for the past ten years severed his connection with the department on Saturday last to assume the duties of police officer to which position he was appointed as supernumerary a few weeks ago. During his service in the park department he made many friends and being thoroughly familiar with all branches of the work he will be greatly missed by the superintendent, Charles A. Whitet, to whom he has been a faithful employee. His many friends throughout the city wish him success in his new field of labor.

PRIZE OF $10,000

ATLANTA, Ga., May 4.—Charles K. Hamilton, in his Curtiss biplane, flew yesterday from the Atlanta speedway to the town of Jonesboro and return, a distance of about 15 miles in a little over 18 minutes. Hamilton announced that when he returns to the east he will try for a $10,000 prize offered by a New York paper for a flight from New York to Albany.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was

16,828

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilote, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

The world will wonder why Lowell will not hold any grant auto race this year. It would take too long to explain.

The talk about Theodore Roosevelt recommending William Loeb for governor to succeed Governor Hughes seems too ridiculous to believe and yet it is distinctly Rooseveltian.

Charles J. Glidden, formerly of Lowell but now of general aero fame, is officiating as sky pilot for people who aspire to fly to the heavens if they can get there in no other way.

If the new arrangement for the selection of text books will put a stop to arbitrary, unintelligent, needless and expensive changes as we believe it will, then for that the school board deserves credit. The schools will be saved the infliction and the taxpayers the expense.

Fortunately but few of the threatened strikes occurred on May Day. Fortunately also the threatened milk strike did not take place. The strike is a two-edged sword that not infrequently inflicts more injury on the user than on the party at whom the blow is aimed.

There is a good deal of apparent absurdity in the effort of Coleman, the Cambridge bank dealer, to fasten responsibility for his own crime upon big Bill Kellier or anybody else. If Coleman did his duty, how could any outside party interfere with the operations of the bank?

If the Huntington hall commission does not possess the authority to construct public baths in conjunction with a public hall the city council can give the needed power. It is well, however, to have clear ideas as to the scope of the commission's powers.

TUBERCULOSIS CAMP.

Some cities of Massachusetts, notably Springfield and Lawrence among the rest, provide outdoor hospitals for the care of consumptives during the warm weather. The results, no doubt, warrant the expense. The small way in which the camp is maintained at the Lowell General hospital in this city indicates what can be done.

NEW RESERVOIR NECESSARY.

The proposition of the water board for a new reservoir on Centralville heights to afford greater pressure for fire service in the Highlands and at the same time to enable the department to clean out the old reservoir is one that must soon be considered, because it is a public necessity involving the greater safety of life and property in the Highlands and the guaranteed purity of our water service.

THE MIDDLEMAN IN THE MILK BUSINESS.

The contractor or middleman is causing most of the trouble over the sale and price of milk in Boston. As the contractors have yearly contracts with the railroads they can probably get all the milk they need outside the trouble zone. The fact remains, however, that the producers should have equal facilities for shipping their milk to the cities in which it is sold. This privilege would enable them to dispense with the middleman.

Here in Lowell there is danger that the imposition of unnecessary and expensive red tape in the sale of milk may drive many farmers out of the business, so as to give way to a trust that will bring milk from a great distance. The milk collected from parts of New Hampshire, Maine and Vermont would not be nearly so good as that which the careful farmer in the suburbs of Lowell produces and delivers to his customers. The coming of a trust to Lowell would mean the elimination of the producer and the introduction of imported milk. That would put most of the present milkmen out of business.

NEW SOURCE OF GRAFT.

The fact may not yet be quite apparent, but it will come out in due time that a new fangled source of governmental graft will be disclosed in the touring cars provided for legislators and public officials. Already the signs are unmistakable from congress down to the ordinary city. Certain officials must have autos to carry them wherever they want to go. This is but right and more effective work may thus be done if the officials take care of the autos. But if the machines be used for joy rides or loaned to friends they will soon get out of repair, and once a municipal auto shows any imperfection it will soon be traded off for a new one. Even the care of an auto costs considerable, and in a city in which from ten to a dozen are used by the officials, the cost becomes an important item. The cast-off autos of the municipality will be more valuable than the old broken-down horses that are sent to pass the remainder of their days in peace at the city farm. There will be a demand for them at a low price, although with slight repairs they might be made to last for years.

The cities of the country are fast equipping with automobiles where horses were used before for the heads of departments and in some cases to take the place of fire horses. This change is bound to come in fire departments all over the country, so that the sale of automobiles for fire service alone will be enormous, once the auto fire engine shall have supplanted the fire steeds, some of these of thrilling memory.

Only close scrutiny and strict economy will protect the taxpayers from dishonesty during the transition period from horse to auto if we are to judge from conditions that prevail in other cities.

GOVERNMENT SEEDS

How dear to his heart is the little farm garden. My congressman pictures with laudable skill! The lettuce, the cabbage (with heads that won't burden) And each tiny pea pod (intent not to fill!) The gaudy tomatoes and peppers he mails me! On each little packet of government seeds! The wee little packet, the partly filled packet, The elderly packet of government seeds!

How sweet from the capital mill to receive it (A present superb for a farmer like me) Not a full packet purchased from seeds may believe! Can equal these seeds in their antiquity. But now I've abandoned my rural vocation. A tear of remembrance its furrowed course leads. For the April 1 I fed to my poultry a Of useless, inanimate government seeds— A wee little packet, a partly filled packet, An elderly packet of government seeds.—M. G. Kains, in the American Agriculturist.

Frank Murphy, who has taken the count many a time in the ring arena, had an experience with a horse that he hired in this city a few days ago and he admits that while bystanders were amused he was much chagrined. He was coming in from Lakeview and the horse was doing first rate. Frank didn't have a word of complaint to offer until he struck Collinsville. The mill whistle announced the noon hour and that was the signal for Frank's horse to stand stock still. Frank pleaded with him to "move on," but in vain. Mill hands on their way to dinner listened to the eloquent pleading of Frank and marveled at the power of the horse to stand out against it from "nice old fellow." "Fine old horse," Frank drifted into the channels of different words, but the horse refused to budge. Everybody was giving Frank the laugh. He had gone back to his seat on the wagon and was looking very sad when the 1 o'clock whistle blew. Imagine Murphy's surprise to beat it down the road. Immediately upon the sound of the whistle. The sequel to the whole thing is this: the horse, several years ago, had been owned by a certain horse in a mill yard and he has never been away from the mill since. The chances are that the horse's disappointment at not being fed between whistles was as great as Murphy's discomfort.

Give us to awake with smiles, give us to labor smiling. As the sun returns in the east, so let our patience be renewed with dawn; as the sun lights the world, so let our loving kindness brighten the house of our habitation.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Speaking of well established habits and the not-to-be-forgotten things that creep into the heads of horses, we are reminded of the fact that Martin Conley, superintendent of the charity department, had a laughable experience, the other day, with one of the two old horses that have been assigned to the city farm for the rest of their natural lives. When there is any other horse available, Martin hitchies one of the old fire lighters to the buggy and jogs downtown. He was in Merrimack street near city hall Monday evening, when box 131 sounded. The old horse pricked up his ears and started toward the scene of the fire. He was well under way before Martin succeeded in calming him and the faithful old fellow wasn't himself again until the "all out" sounded.

TWO INSANE MEN

Were Captured By Manchester Police

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 4.—Joseph Walway, aged 25, and Ambrose Van Buskirk, aged 16, who escaped Monday night from the Danvers, Mass., asylum for the insane, were arrested in this city last evening by Policeman Charles L. Wood. The officer observed Walway at the electric car transfer station on Elm street and recognized him from the description furnished by the asylum authorities. He took him to the police headquarters where Walway claimed to be an attendant at the state hospital at Concord. While the examination of Walway was in progress, Policeman Wood walked into the station with Van Buskirk whom he had found at the transfer station. Van Buskirk, who is regarded as dangerous, having it is alleged murdered a Catherine Grey of Lawrence by beating in her head with a stone, did not deny his identity.

The Spauldings were married about ten years ago. In 1907 Mrs. Spaulding obtained a divorce in the Plymouth county superior court. Two years later, March 25, 1909, the couple remarried. Mrs. Spaulding testified yesterday before Judge Stevens that she had been in the same marriage because her husband had pleaded so hard for a reconciliation.

"After you knew what his habits were," the court asked.

"Well, I loved him and after I obtained a divorce I wondered what he was doing. He promised to quit drinking and so we were married," was the wife's answer.

For three weeks the remarried couple lived happily on Walnut street, this city, then went to live with Mrs. Spaulding's mother, Mrs. Hannah Stiles, on North Montello street. Then their troubles began again.

A PRIZE FIGHTER

"Pete" Burg Says He Once Was One

The following is from the Lynn Item: Pete Burg, diminutive third sacker for Bill Hamilton's collection of ball jugglers, deserted the prize ring to uplift the national game, according to a story he told while resting his feet on a brass rail in the Hotel Seymour during off hours. Sometimes he feels sorry that he did not continue in the squared circle, especially when the umpires give him a wrong deal.

Pete was working in Chicago at the time he decided to change his vocation of prize fighter to that of baseball artist. He carried almost as much weight then as he does now, except for a few pounds he gained in the ring and had not any sudden notice from the club management as to what they expected him to do to his opponent.

Pete's first experience was so satisfactory to him and the members of the club before which the fight was held that he was out on every Friday night. He was asked to put on this time with a heavyweight that he decided to quit the ring and become a ball player.

"Never mind the name of the club," said Pete to Chick Cargio, who seemed like a doubting Thomas, but nevertheless was willing to hear Pete tell of his winning fights. "I used to go there every night and watch some of the fighters getting into shape for bouts which were put on every Friday night. Usually I was allowed a ringside seat at the fight, and I was an ardent rooter for the best man."

"One night, after two lesser bouts had been put on, the matchmaker of the club worked his way in to my seat, and getting my ear, whispered to me, 'Come on out, I want to talk to you.' There was a rattling good bout on at the time, and I wanted to see the finish, but the boss wouldn't stand for it."

"Come on," he said, so I went outside with him to the corner of the fellows who was to go on in the bantamweight class for the star bout of the night was not to be present. He'd changed his mind about fighting, as the boss said, and the club management was in a stew as to what they would do to fill the bill.

Pete's First Fight "Finally the boss told me that he wanted me to go on and take the absent man's place. I never seen a city one of the lighters, much less the fellow I was going to fight, but that didn't make any difference. The manager led me to a dressing room, and I climbed into a pair of lights. When the referee called the bout I was led out, wrapped up like an Indian in a big blanket, and crawled through the ropes into the ring."

"My opponent was sitting on a stool in his corner of the ring, and he grinned when he saw me. I was much heavier than he was, and he had a few pounds of weight on me. I didn't pay much attention to him until the referee introduced us and we stepped to the center of the ring to shake hands. As he stuck out his hand to grasp mine, the other fellow whispered, 'You're a fellow, I'm sorry for you.'"

"That's all he had time to say for I just reached up and landed one right on his jaw, and before the sound of the gong had died out he was taking the count. I climbed out of the ring, got $5 from the club management and went home after dressing."

Two Others Down and Out

"A couple of weeks later I went on at the same club against a lightweight, and I dropped him before he had a chance to send out signals of distress. It was very easy money for me, and I agreed, two weeks later, to go on against an unknown. That fellow happened to be a middleweight, and I disposed of him as easy as the others. I hadn't been in the game if I had been in the game for two weeks later the matchmaker came to me and said he had been disappointed again, and wanted me to take the place of the absent fighter."

"I didn't do any training for my previous fights, because they had been shorter than I and I told the boss it would be all right for me to go on. The house was packed that night, and I felt that I would win as easily as I had on the other nights, but I changed my mind when I got into the ring. The announcer introduced me, and when the man in the man in the other corner got off his stool and stood up to bow to the crowd I saw he was six feet tall and weighed about three times as much as I did. I just took a look at him, shouted 'Good night' to the crowd and got out of the ring quicker than I got in."

The next day I started playing baseball and I've kept at it ever since. I stand some chance in this game, but I wouldn't be here if I had put my hands up against that heavyweight boxer."

SECOND DIVORCE

Has Been Granted to

Brockton Woman

BROCKTON, May 4.—For the second time in three years Mrs. Nellie M. Spaulding of this city yesterday obtained a divorce decree nisi from her husband, Charles B. Spaulding of Dorchester, a well known pianist in Boston and Nantasket, where he has played for several years in amusement resorts. As in the first divorce libel Mrs. Spaulding charged her husband with gross and confirmed habits of intoxication.

The Spauldings were married about ten years ago. In 1907 Mrs. Spaulding obtained a divorce in the Plymouth county superior court. Two years later, March 25, 1909, the couple remarried. Mrs. Spaulding testified yesterday before Judge Stevens that she had been in the same marriage because her husband had pleaded so hard for a reconciliation.

AN ENTIRE TOWN COL. ROOSEVELT

In Vermont Was Men-

Accorded Royal Honors

aced By Fire in Copenhagen

BELLINGSFORD, Vt., May 4.—The largest fire in North Walpole has for years broke out last night about 9.30 in the wholesale bakery of William Duffy on Center street in the most thickly populated section of the town. North Walpole has only a small department and the fire was soon beyond control.

This town was called upon for aid and the entire department was finally sent. The flames spread to the grocery store adjoining, thence to the tenement house of Patrick Ratchford, which was wiped out. Daniel Connors' house caught several times, but strenuous efforts saved the buildings. The fire then jumped across the street to the houses of Jerry Woolf and Robert Howard, but owing to a slight shift of the wind and a heavy rain, both were saved.

William Duffy was asleep over his store and was awakened, escaping with a little box of books. His loss he estimated at $10,000 and he is insured for $4,000. The house of Patrick Ratchford, at $2,500, was insured for $1100. A large icehouse, bakery and barn in the square were burned. They had no insurance.

The entire damage will approximate $20,000.

A BIG SUCCESS

Was Masquerade Party

for Day Nursery

The masquerade party in Colonial hall last night in aid of the Day Nursery was a great success. The dancers were masked until 10 o'clock and at the unmasking the prizes were awarded to Miss Caroline Wright, who all in gold, was "Pumpkin"; Thomas Clark as "Buster Brown," and Geo. Jefferson as a Monkey.

Others in the masquerade were: Miss Bessie Chaffoux, as "Folly"; Miss Polly Farrington, as Dutch maid; Miss Florence Plunkett, as "Little Bo-Peep"; Harry Brown as a Chief; Miss Catherine Tucker as a French maid; Parker Tucker as a Mexican; Alvin Weaver, as a policeman; Harry Chaffoux, as an Arab; Miss Louise Parker, as a French maid; Harold Gould, as Kennebec knight; Me, as an Italian cavalier; Allen Winfield, as a French knight; Me, as an Italian cavalier; Allen Williams as a girl; Miss Helen Nesmith, as a French maid; Miss Rebecca Bartlett, as a French maid; Paul Holister of Grand Rapids, Mich., as a sailor; Carlyle Holt, of Grand Rapids, Mich., as a sailor, and others.

The mysteries of the party were two young ladies who appeared as a cowboy and cowgirl, and who at the time of unmasking left the hall. Their identities were not revealed.

Intermission came at 11 o'clock, after which there was dancing until midnight.

The patronesses of the party were: Mrs. R. E. Bell, Mrs. F. C. Church, Mrs. E. M. Tucke, Mrs. Percy Parker, Mrs. T. E. Parker, Mrs. Lewis MacBrayne, Mrs. Warren O. Winsor, Mrs. Frederick Bogardus, Mrs. Robert F. Marden, Mrs. Arthur C. Prince, Mrs. Harry Reed, Mrs. Marjorie Jefferson, Mrs. J. C. Plunkett, Mrs. Julian Talbot. The committee in charge consisted of Messrs. John P. Davis, Ralph M. Bean, Willard Morrison, Arthur Varnum, J. M. Abbott, Hutchins Parker and Dr. Harold B. Plunkett.

GETS $13,750

BOY WHO LOST LEG IS GIVEN

VERDICT

NEW YORK, May 4.—The sum of $13,750 for the loss of a leg, was awarded to Harold Schaffer, the six-year-old son of a policeman, by the appellate division of the supreme court yesterday, affirming a decision of the lower court. It is the largest verdict ever upheld here for such injury.

Young Schaffer was struck by an iron bar protruding from a work car as he stood on a platform of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railway in the Bronx. As he had a commutation ticket in his pocket and was waiting for a train, the court held that he was to all intents a passenger.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

Nerves

The board of selectmen met Monday night and signed the street lighting contract for the year. The contract calls for 117 lights. Two additional lights are to be installed, one at the corner of Wilson street and Talbot street and the other at Sprague's bridge.

BILLERICA

The meeting of the board of fire engineers was held Monday night, and George C. Crosby was elected chief engineer of the department for the ensuing year. John Baker was elected secretary of the board. Chief Crosby will also act as forest warden, the selection having recently to appoint the chief engineer to that position.

The fire engineers appointed Charles E. Fairbrother captain, and Roger Barrington assistant captain of steam company No. 1. Captain Fairbrother assumed the duties of his new office last night, when he presided over the meeting of that company held in the engine house at North Billerica.

The annual roll call and election of officers of the North Billerica Baptist church was held Monday night in the church vestry. The meeting opened with a banquet after which officers were elected. They: Charles H. Williams, Ph. D., the pastor, presided during the session.

During the business meeting the following officers were elected: Clerk, Mrs. Nancy Latham; treasurer, Archibald Rice; janitors, John E. Rowell, Alex. Allan, Charles W. Hough, John Dewhurst; standing committee, James Sutcliffe, Mrs. Nancy Latham, Mrs. Ivory M. Hanson, John E. Rowell, John Dewhurst, Alex. Allan, Jonas Watmough; baptism committee, A. Ritchie, Leroy Spaulding, Miss E. Walker, Mrs. Carrie Smith, Miss Nellie Bullock; nominating committee, James Sutcliffe, Mrs. A. Allan, Archibald Ritchie.

Mr. Ritchie, the new treasurer of the church, succeeds the late Thomas E. Spaulding, who served in that capacity for a period of nearly 17 years, being chosen in 1893. A brief address was delivered by Rev. Mr. Williams, and there was a duet by Mrs. Carrie Booth and Miss Agnes Allan.

GAME WAS BALKED

Suspicious of a Boston Woman Saved Her $2000

BOSTON, May 4.—Victor Terra, 39 years old, whose picture is in the rogues' gallery and who, the police believe, is a professional confidence man, was held in $2500 pending an examination May 10 on a charge of attempted larceny when arraigned in the municipal court yesterday. Before his case is reached, Sergeant Gallivan and Special Officers Flynn and O'Donnell of the North End police station will investigate the story of Mrs. Mary Elans of Malden, who alleges that Terra and another, who is at liberty, had planned to rob her of $2000.

The police are looking for the other man, who is known only to the woman as "Little John."

A week ago Monday, according to her story, Mrs. Elans met "Little John" in a hotel in the North End, and he represented to her that he was very rich. A legacy of $15,000 which he had inherited from his father, he said he intended to use to alleviate the sufferings of cripples and in helping the blind. "Little John" said that he had been told that Mrs. Elans was prominent in charity work and told her it was his wish that she act as his agent in the distribution of his fortune.

"Little John" claimed to be a real philanthropist. He introduced Terra to her and the latter also claimed to have money that he was willing to donate for the aid of the blind and the crippled.

The woman met the two men several times. The police declare that when the men felt that they were in possession of her confidence they suggested to her that she draw $2000 from the bank to put with like amounts they were to post, the total being used for buying a house. It was not clear to her why she should buy any house. She suspected something was wrong, believing, she said yesterday, that Terra was a schemer. She trusted "Little John" implicitly. Monday afternoon she kept an appointment with the two men, bringing with her the $2000. "Little John" did not appear, but Terra did. Terra asked her if she had her $2000 and she replied that she had, whereupon she says Terra produced a package he said contained $2700. He was willing to contribute that amount, remarking there was nothing mean about him.

She asked Terra to meet her later in the afternoon and he consented. She then contacted Sergeant Gallivan and Special Officers O'Donnell and Flynn. They were watching when she met Terra the second time. Learning he was being watched Terra ran away, pursued by the policemen, being captured after a chase of several blocks.

While he was running away he dropped the package the woman said he had produced, claiming it contained $2700. The police found it contained two genuine $1 bills, a bogus $100 bill and a wad of newspaper clippings.

When Terra was at headquarters yesterday it was learned that last August he had been sentenced to serve six months in the house of correction for attempting to pick pockets last summer.

Mrs. Elans is married to a prosperous Italian and has a handsome residence at Malden, the police say. Every time she came to the city she visited the hotel at the North End, her husband being well-known there, and believes that the men, knowing of her generosity, decided to attempt swindling her on that score.

TRENT TRIAL ENDED

The Jury May Present Its Verdict This Afternoon

PROVIDENCE, May 4.—The taking of evidence in the trial of William Trent, charged with the murder of William Meagher in his grocery store in Pawtucket in February, was concluded at today's session. It is expected that the jury will retire later in the day.

With the introduction of Joe Dickson, a sailor with whom Trent roomed at the time the murder was committed and who testified that Trent was away from the boarding house on the night of the murder, the state rested its case. Testifying in his own behalf, Trent stated that he was at the boarding house on the evening of the murder and immediately denied all the testimony given by the state's witnesses.

The defense introduced Mrs. Mary Howard, who conducted the boarding house in which both Dickson and Trent roomed, together with her three daughters, who testified that on the night of the murder Trent remained at home and did not leave the house during the evening.

THE BLACK HAND

Blamed for Attack on Politician's Home

PAWTUCKET, R. I., May 4.—Bernard A. Keenan, one of the most powerful politicians in this city, is considerably frightened over what looks like a plan of his enemies, to try to drive him out of the city.

Keenan yesterday complained to the police that Monday night, while his sister and her daughter were in his house, 199 Cottage street, three large stones were hurled through different windows of the building.

It was not until yesterday, when he reported the incident of Monday night, that he revealed to the police that he had previously received two threatening letters signed "The Black Hand." He believes the stones throwing and the letters have some connection with each other.

Keenan received his first "Black Hand" letter March 23. This communication told Keenan to leave Pawtucket at once or he would suffer the consequences. Keenan paid no attention to it, and it was followed a few days later by another missive, in which was enclosed a newspaper clipping containing an account of the blowing up of a house by dynamite. Appended to the clipping was: "This is what is going to happen to your house."

Keenan was at one time a prominent democrat, but a few years ago became a republican, and since then his political enemies have made him the subject of many campaign attacks. His desertion of the democratic party has been criticized quite severely. Keenan is a member of the license board and it is said he has been responsible for denying quite a number of applications for licenses, and for this cause it is stated that he has incurred the enmity of a number of unsuccessful applicants.

Herbert Newell, who lives near Keenan, heard the crash of glass, and, looking out of his house, saw two men step off the Keenan porch and hurry away.

MOULDERS STRIKE

Trouble at the Lowell Machine Shop

Sixty iron moulders went out on strike from the Lowell Machine shop this morning. The exact cause of their grievance was not learned. Supt. Morton was not at his office this afternoon and a man in the office stated that in the absence of Mr. Morton there wasn't anybody in authority to discuss the matter.

The arrival of Jeffries in Oakland last night for the purpose of accompanying his wife back to Ben Lomond was so coincident with the meeting as to give rise to the belief that he would remain for participation in the conference.

THE REFEREE

FOR BIG FIGHT MAY BE SELECTED TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Speculation was rife today among sports as to who would be chosen at this afternoon's conference to referee the Jeffries-Johnson mill. So many names have been suggested and the field of selection is so large that there was little unanimity of opinion regarding the probable choice.

Two denials came from the opposing factions yesterday. Sam Berger denied the report that there is to be a shakeup in Jeffries' training camp, that there are too many old men at Ben Lomond and not enough young rowdies. Jack Johnston denied a story to the effect that he had wired a friend in Chicago not to post a bet that the fight would take place July 4 as scheduled.

Division 1, of the Ladies Auxiliary, A. O. H., held a well attended meeting in Hibernian hall last night. There was a large attendance and during the course of the evening considerable business of importance was transacted. Seven new members were initiated and arrangements were completed for the May party which is to be held on May 30th.

LADIES' AUXILIARY, A. O. H.

Sunday, May 15th, will be communion Sunday and it is expected that there will be a large attendance. Communion will be received at St. Peter's church. At the conclusion of the meeting a musical and literary program was carried out.

KING DEPOSED

SOUTH SEA ISLANDERS PUT ANOTHER ON THRONE

VICTORIA, B. C., May 4.—Because they deposed the king of Wallis island and placed another chief on his throne, the blacks of the South Sea Islands are to be visited by a French warship in June, according to news brought here by the steamer Makura. The trouble arose over the French residents banishing a prominent chief in the king's name. The banished man's friends went straight to the king's town and forcibly removed him. Wallis island is a French protectorate.

BIGAMY CHARGE

Has Been Made Against Col. Tetlow

PITTSBURG, May 4.—Col. James T. Tetlow, according to his first wife here, and to papers furnished by her to the police yesterday, has committed bigamy in marrying the 18-year-old sister of his bride, to whom he had been married less than five months. Mrs. Tetlow, formerly Miss Clara Jordan, yesterday entered suit against her husband, "Col. James T. Tetlow, U. S. A., retired," charging him with bigamy. The marriage license records show that Tetlow on last Saturday took out a license and was married to Miss Ethel Jordan, 18 years old, a sister of the woman who claims to be his first wife. Tetlow, in taking out this license, swore he had not been previously married.

From papers furnished by the deserted young woman, Tetlow appears to have been a soldier's fortune. He, according to his wife, was one of the first to reach the crest of San Juan Hill with Roosevelt. It is also shown that he was some years since decorated with the Cross of the French Legion of Honor and he was the recipient of a commendatory letter from Lord Roberts for bravery shown on the field in the Boer war. His wife says he was formerly connected with the First United States Volunteer Cavalry.

According to information given the police by Mrs. Tetlow, her husband comes from one of the best known families in Maine.

BATTLESHIP MAINE

WASHINGTON, May 4.—After 12 years the ill-fated battleship Maine is to be removed from the Havana harbor and the bodies which went down with the vessel will be interred in the National cemetery at Arlington. A bill providing for such removal and burial which has passed the house was today passed by the senate.

SEN. SPALDING

MEMBER OF LEGISLATURE DIED OF HEART DISEASE

BOSTON, May 4.—The sixth death of a member of the legislature of 1910 occurred early today when Senator Thorndyke Spalding died of heart disease at his home in Cambridge. He had been ill for several months. Senator Spalding was 42 years old. He was graduated from Harvard university in 1875 and from the Harvard law school in 1877. He was elected to the senate from the second Middlesex district in 1905 as a republican and was re-elected last fall. Previously he had been a member of the Cambridge city government.

PRESIDENT TAFT

Theodore Thomas

CINCINNATI, O., May 4.—President Taft wound up a day of renewing old acquaintances by appearing before a brilliant and enthusiastic throng at the opening of Cincinnati's annual May music festival last night, as the dedicatory of a heroic statue of Theodore Thomas, first conductor of the festival and formerly head of the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra.

Having respected the president's wish that he be treated as a "citizen of Cincinnati," all day, the public took full advantage of his appearance last night to acclaim him as the chief executive of the nation. A fanfare of trumpets ushered the president on the stage, but the notes of the instruments were drowned by the shouting applause of the thousands who had listened to the strains of Handel's "Judas Macbeth" with its story of love, liberty and justice.

A chorus of 800 voices, backed by an immense organ and the Chicago orchestra, sounded "O Liberty, Thou Chastest Treasure, Seat of Virtue, Source of Blessure" and was augmented by 200 voices when the chorus, "See the Conquering Hero Comes" was reached. Mrs. Theodore

Thomas and her two sons occupied a box at last night's concert and heard the president's eulogy of the dead musician.

The statue of Thomas stands in the corner of the building. The draperies were removed at the conclusion of the president's speech and the departing audience viewed it.

After the concert the president went to the Queen City club, where Lawrence Maxwell, formerly solicitor general of the United States and now president of the May Festival association, was his host until the presidential party left for St. Louis shortly before midnight.

At the Loyal Legion meeting yesterday, President Taft, after declaring that he had been "too young to fight in the Civil war and too fat to take part in the Spanish war," said: "It is a pleasure to come to one's home, especially when you have been in Washington and have been gently chided for your shortcomings, and to snuggle up close to those who are fond of you, who have respect for you whatever happens, and who believe that however great the obstacles are and however severe the criticism may be in other parts of the country you are doing the best you can."

THOUSANDS OF NEW YORKERS SAW END OF WESTON'S WALK

NEW YORK, May 4.—The finish of the record breaking walk of Edward P. Weston from the Pacific to the Atlantic was the scene of a remarkable demonstration on the part of New York crowds. Tens of thousands of people cheered the seventy-two-year-old walker as he marched down Broadway surrounded by mounted police.

TWO PATROLMEN ADELINE GENE

Were Called Before the Police Board

Two patrolmen appeared before the board of police at the regular meeting last night as a result of charges having been preferred against them. One of the men was charged with breach of discipline, while the other was summoned to appear before the board to give reason why he should not pay his debts.

By agreement between counsel and the board the hearing of the cases will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The following licenses were acted upon:

To sell ice cream, confectionery, soda water and fruit on the Lord's day: Acilia Hebert, 265 Lincoln street; hawker and peddler, Morris Goldberg, 18 Daly street; Vasilios Coranis, 483 Market street; billiards and pool, Patrick McAndrews, 291 Chalmers street; Antoni Sokolowski, 77 East Merrimack street.

Common victualler—Gregorias P. Tsigrakos, 503 1-2 Market street; Frank E. Putnam, 10 Merrimack street; D. L. Page Co., 94 Merrimack street, corner of Prescott and Merrimack streets and 484 Middlesex street; Karapoulos Eliasopoulos, 493 Market street; Nicholas D. Syropoulos, 463 Market street; Ernest Chambers, 388 Middlesex street; Peter Anastopoulos, 478 Market street.

Junk collector—John McHugh, 10 Emory street.

Job wagon—John H. McDonald, 255 Hildreth street, four licenses; John J. McKenney, Billerica.

Knicker coach—Joseph Albert, 57 Cheever street, four licenses.

The following licenses were laid on the table: Common victualler—St. Zonnolis, 478 Market street; John Vlahakos, 483 Market street; Soterios Lembeses, 497 1/2 Market street; Nicholas Trafalis, 488 Suffolk street; billiards and pool—Nicholas Trafalis, 388 Suffolk street; John Vlahakos, 488 Market street; Soterios Lembeses, 487 1/2 Market street.

On the application of W. Dane, representing the Altherthaw Construction Co. of Boston, Timothy Murphy and James Gahnd were appointed special police officers, without pay, from the city, for the property of the Massachusetts cotton mills and Boston & Maine R. R. on Canal street and vicinity.

MAY INCREASE FREIGHT RATES: NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 4.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. will not follow the lead of other railroad corporations in filing with the interstate commerce commission at Washington any schedule of advances of freight rates. Later, however, it may consider an increase of freight rates upon small consignments and packages of freight on which, in the opinion of the company, the rates have hitherto been too low.

FOR PEOPLE WHO ITCH AND SCRATCH

Get a 10c box of Cadum, the new remedy, at any drug store, and apply a small quantity to any part of the skin which is affected and it will stop the itching at once. It is also good for pimples, rash, blotches, also where there is inflammation, chafing or itching. Inside of a day the trouble will be greatly relieved and often disappear completely. This test will prove better than words the remarkable virtues of this new compound. Cadum is likewise a safe and sure remedy for Eczema, Salt Rheum and other stubborn skin diseases of that nature. The itching stops at once when it is applied, and the healing process is immediately begun. Full-size boxes of Cadum, containing about four times as much as the 10c package, are sold for 25c.

Famous Dancer to Desert Stage

LONDON, May 4.—Adeline Gense, the greatest dancer that ever visited America, is going to desert the stage for married life. June 11 the wonderful Danish dancer will be married to Frank N. S. Isitt. Royalty will be present at the wedding, and the Duke and Duchess of Newcastle will give a reception in her honor. Adeline Gense during her three visits to the United States danced her way into the hearts of thousands.

KNIGHTS OF MALTA
A representative body of the Lowell Commandery, Knights of Malta, went to Everett Monday night by special car to pay a fraternal visit to the commandery of that city. The Lowell men were met by a delegation from the Everett commandery and headed by a drum corps marched to the Grand Army hall where a general good time was had.

Among the guests of the evening were Supreme Commander William M. Macomber, who spoke at length of the pleasant relations he had enjoyed with Lowell commandery as its deputy prior to his elevation to his present high office.

A banquet was served by Gethsemane sisterhood, Dames of Malta, after which there was a season of post-prandial and general sociability. Informal remarks were made by Deputy Grand Commander A. M. Robinson, Commanding Herbert J. Elliott, Building Inspector James Dow, Assistant Superintendent of Streets George W. Hartwell, officers and past officers of Lowell and Gethsemane commanderies. The Lowell contingent left Everett at about midnight, voting Everett knights' loyal bests. William H. Saunders was chairman of the committee of arrangements.

AGED MILLIONAIRE DEAD

MINNEAPOLIS, May 4.—Levi Stewart, reputed to be the richest man in Minneapolis, died yesterday afternoon of old age and lung trouble. It is estimated that his realty holdings alone were worth upward of $5,000,000.

Mr. Stewart was born in Corning, Me., in 1825. His parents determined that he should become a minister, but the young man secured a position in a sawmill and made his living by working on fishing boats. He obtained enough money to pay for his tuition at Dartmouth and later obtained a position as a teacher in an eastern academy. He came to Minneapolis in 1856. While eccentric in a degree, Mr. Stewart was very charitable in his own peculiar way. His foresight and early investments made him rich, yet he is said to have lived more simply than a common laborer. It was said that he spent less than $2 per week upon his food and clothing.

of the court of appeals for 17 years. He was born June 14, 1841, at Skaneateles, N. Y., where he will be buried Friday. His great grandfather was Joseph Bartlett, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and of the articles of the confederation and first governor and chief justice of New Hampshire. Judge Bartlett graduated from Union college.
